Yoshida's Inglis Easter odyssey cements Australian love affair

Asian Bloodstock Services principal lauds 'genuine' breeders, Inglis for first major digital sale

BY SCOTT BURTON | @ANZ_NEWS

Marie Yoshida is used to the idea that racing is a journey, having travelled from her parents' farm in northern France, via Australia and Hong Kong to Winchester Farm in Kentucky.

But the unique circumstances of this year's Inglis Australian Easter Yearling Sale have obliged her to really put her travelling boots on in order not to miss out on crucial yearling inspections.

First she took the decision not to leave a closing of borders to chance and headed for Sydney to complete her 14 days self-isolation.

And once it became clear that no buyers would be setting foot in the Riverside Stables complex, Yoshida resolved to get out and see the horses for herself. Continued on page 2>>

Brutal retired to Newgate Farm after abandonment of Queensland carnival

The coronavirus outbreak has forced Doncaster Mile (Gr 1, 1600m) winner Brutal (O'Reilly) into immediate retirement rather than enjoying a Queensland winter campaign before heading to stud later this year.

The Group 1 winner, a striking juvenile-winning four-year-old entire by champion New Zealand sire O'Reilly (Last Tycoon), will form part of the Newgate Farm stallion roster in 2020 having been successful in five of his ten starts.

Trained by Michael, Wayne and John Hawkes-trained, Brutal was being set for a Stradbroke Handicap (Gr 1, 1400m) swansong after a lead-up preparation aimed at the Doomben 10,000 (Gr 1, 1200m) and the Kingsford-Smith Cup (Gr 1, 1300m) before Racing Queensland scrapped the carnival to save money as a result of the coronavirus pandemic. Industry News page 11 >>

"I did my two weeks quarantine and then I rented a car, drove to Scone and I've been here for several days now," said Yoshida, whose Asian Bloodstock Services agency is one of the most reliable sources of success for the Hong Kong market.

"I've been 'round all the farms and have just started my second looks, while I've already sent a list to the vet for screening with x-rays, scopes. Everything is very well organised.

But year after year, Edinglassie deliver winners, they deliver good horses. It's not a big place but Mick and Michelle (Talty) are true horse people

MARIE YOSHIDA

"I moved here for the first time in 1991 and there are still the same breeders - they are all a bit older now! - and they are all united. I received the best welcome from them.

"They are ready, their gates are open and there are even some consignors that have accepted yearlings from other breeders who don't have a farm in the Hunter Valley. Truly this is just the best experience."

The way in which most consignors and breeders have pulled together in the face of what might seem overwhelming odds this year has struck a chord with Yoshida, who began a love affair with Australia when working alongside Phil Redden at Turannga Stud nearly 30 years ago, one which was cemented with a first visit to the Easter sale six years later.

"On Saturday morning I drove from Scone to Widden Stud, an hour across a beautiful valley," she said. "It's magical. You can really feel Australia. From Widden I could take a shortcut to Coolmore and it blows you away.

"From there I went to Edinglassie, which is a little breeder but I've known these people for 29 years. Australian breeders are tough and this is maybe the toughest place on earth to be a breeder.

"But year after year, Edinglassie deliver winners, they deliver good horses. It's not a big place but Mick and Michelle (Talty) are true horse people.

"This experience gets you to believe in humanity, to believe in quality. Because I can tell you, the yearlings are amazing. It's so hard to do a shortlist but you can easily have 20, 25, 30 top yearlings. How do you choose?"

Yoshida's enthusiasm for the breeders has been nurtured down the years, helped in no small part by scoring a spectacular early success when securing a son of Danehill (Danzig) who went on to become the Hong Kong legend that is Fairy King Prawn on her first outing at Inglis Easter back in 1997.

"His mother was by Twig Moss - her name was Twiglet and she was a very good racemare - and back in 1991 I had gone to work with Dr Phil Redman, who stood a French stallion named Twig Moss," Yoshida continued.

"He was a very good stallion and became an influential broodmare sire. So you had Danehill and Twiglet, I got very lucky and I carried on getting lucky, like with Sirius Lake, the first Fastnet Rock, that was very exciting too.

Adrian Bott could just have been relaxing in Sydney with all his Group 1 winners and Golden Slippers. But no, he was there, inspecting the horses

MARIE YOSHIDA

"I work on Australian racing every day because Hong Kong is obviously full of Australian horses. In Australia there are fantastic fillies and mares - everyone knows about Winx - it's a treasure trove. So you need to know your female lines and they run very deep in this catalogue."

Her road trip in the run up to this sale has been a departure from the normal routine at the sales grounds but Yoshida believes that, not only are the inspections essential, but the sense of community being engendered among vendors is unique in global bloodstock.

She said: "What was wonderful was that on Sunday morning, I was able to do six farms, one every half an hour. And they were all kind to one another and gave directions to the next farm, down all these back roads. We can be cynical but these people really help each other. I haven't felt so happy in a while and I feel very humbled by this."

And while other potential buyers are not always pleased to see the competition arrive, there is a mutual respect between those making the hard miles between farms.

"I met Adrian Bott at Kitchwin Hills on Sunday afternoon," she said. "Kitchwin is not even on a paved road and I came across this iguana in the middle of the track! So Adrian and I were there at the same time and to begin with we were a bit wary of one another. But he kindly said I could lead with the instructions [as the horses were being shown]." Continued on page 5>>

"Adrian Bott could just have been relaxing in Sydney with all his Group 1 winners and Golden Slippers. But no, he was there, inspecting the horses. And they are a really nice bunch at Kitchwin. I left there and I'd forgotten about the sweat and the dust and the iguana because I didn't feel I'd been wasting my time, I was happy.

"The competitors are there and the Hong Kong competition will be there.

"I admire the genuine Australian breeders, who are not going anywhere and will be here the next year and the years after. And my owners as well. We are going to invest, we want to support our trainers, our pre-trainers. It's a huge industry."

None of Yoshida's optimism would be possible if not for the efforts of Inglis to reinvent the Easter sale as an online-only project, offering not only the technological platform but the human support in the days and weeks running up to selling

"William Inglis deserves all the credit and I don't know if there is another sales company in the world that could have done what they have," said Yoshida, a self-confessed Ebay junkie who hopes that the strategy learned over the years of using one online auction website might stand her in good stead for another.

"It's exciting because we are moving to another dimension with the bidding online. And if several people are interested in a horse then the auction will start again and you can really have a fair chance. You will have no excuse to miss a horse."

Inglis sale ring

Only time will tell if this most crucial of marketplaces can satisfy all parties in what is a hugely unsettling time for the industry and the wider economy.

But Yoshida is impressed with what she has seen, both in terms of stock and the determination of all those involved to make a success of the sale.

"We are not vultures," she said. "We are genuine horse people looking for quality horses and I hope many people can respect not only Hong Kong racing but Hong Kong owners, some of whom are not only very smart but very attached to the sport and the horses. And the Australians are resilient. I admire them so much."

Mamaragan given chance in Sires

Mamaragan

SPORTPIX

John Thompson hopes that talented juvenile Mamaragan (Wandjina), who confirmed his ability when third in the Golden Slipper Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m), can prove him wrong by running out the distance strongly in Saturday's Inglis Sires (registered as ATC Sires' Produce Stakes) (Gr 1, 1400m) at Randwick. Mamaragan's debut was delayed by shin soreness but he burst onto the scene in one of the key Slipper lead-ups, winning the Skyline Stakes (Gr 2, 1200m) at Randwick on February 29. Now, his owners have paid the late entry fee for the Sires. "Personally, I thought he was a speed horse," Thompson said. "They were my early thoughts and that's why I didn't nominate him for the Sires. But from day one when Nash has got on him he said he'll make a nice 1400-metre, mile horse. That's the feel the colt has given him."

Nature Strip favoured to take out TJ

Chris Waller's triple Group 1 winner Nature Strip (Nicconi) is the early favourite for Saturday's T J Smith Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) after cruising to a trial victory last week. "The horse is very well,"

Waller said. "We gave him a maintenance trial last Friday just to ensure he's not too fresh. Everything is well with him. I haven't got too much to be concerned about. It's a great field which is what you'd expect and no doubt it will create a lot of interest. The best sprinters in the country are there. If he repeats his domination in the Darley Sprint up the straight during Cup week he's certainly the one to beat. He showed last start he's back to his best form."

Boss in love with Gaby

Glen Boss got his first feel for Group 1-winning filly Loving Gaby (I Am Invincible) in a track gallop at Warwick Farm yesterday and the veteran rider could not have been more impressed. "Wow - she is a weapon. I haven't been on her back before, but she gave me a great feel this morning. She's ready to go," Boss told Racing.com. "She's a filly that's built like a four-year-old entire and her form is very strong coming into this but she's up against a great field, so she'll need to be every bit as good as she feels to be winning." The last-start William Reid Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) winner is a leading contender for Saturday's T J Smith Stakes at Randwick for Ciaran Maher and David Eustace.

Sydney return could spark Exceedance

Team Hawkes' main Melbourne jockey Dwayne Dunn, who won the Coolmore Stud Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) on three-year-old Exceedance (Exceed And Excel), believes a return to Sydney and a tilt at the T J Smith Stakes could spark a return to form for the valuable colt. Owned by a powerful group of investors including Vinery Stud, Exceedance has been unplaced in the Newmarket

Handicap (Gr 1, 1200m) and the William Reid Stakes this campaign. "I'm hoping that he gets back to the environment up in Sydney and that turns him back on," Dunn told Racing.com. "He has put two average runs together, but we expect a lot more from him than what we have seen. No doubt (co-trainer) John (Hawkes) and the boys will be putting their minds together to try and work it out to change him round. I just think the trip back to Sydney, he is back in his home environment where he was running so consistently before."

Brandenburg top elect for Doncaster

New Zealand champion Melody Belle (Commands) has been replaced as favourite in an open market for the Doncaster Mile (Gr 1, 1600m), which has attracted a capacity field. Melody Belle, who shares top weight of 57 kilograms with Epsom Handicap (Gr 1, 1600m) winner Kolding (Ocean Park), has drawn barrier 14 for Saturday's $1.5 million race and has been eased from $6 to $8 with three-year-old Brandenburg (Burgundy) now first elect at $7.50. The John Sargent-trained Brandenburg will be ridden by Glen Boss. Chris Waller has eight horses in the field, along with third emergency Reloaded (Snitzel). Waller's runners are Kolding ($12), Kings Will Dream (Casamento) ($26), Mister Sea Wolf (Amadeus Wolf) ($16), Yulong Prince (Gimmethegreenlight) ($26), Imaging (Oasis Dream) ($12), Star Of The Seas (Ocean Park) ($41), Night's Watch (Redwood) ($26) and Shared Ambition (Born To Sea) ($9), while third emergency Reloaded is $26.

Fifty Stars sidelined

Fifty Stars

SPORTPIX

Fifty Stars (Sea The Stars) is out of the Doncaster Mile and could be retired after sustaining an injury in a Sydney barrier trial last week. The Lindsay Park-trained five-year-old entire, who won the Blamey Stakes (Gr 2, 1600m) and Australian Cup (Gr 1, 2000m) in consecutive weeks, ran fifth in a Randwick hit-out last Friday and it was after that performance that a problem was detected. Senior trainer David Hayes told Racing NSW stewards that Fifty Stars, who is raced by Melbourne Cup-winning owner Gerry Ryan, was lame in a near foreleg. The severity of the injury could see Fifty Stars not race again.

Beauty Bolt prepares for Adelaide campaign at home

Grahame Begg has had to rethink Beauty Bolt's (Redoute's Choice) program with movement across state borders currently restricted. Beauty Bolt is being aimed at the Australasian Oaks (Gr 1, 2000m) at Morphettville in May and, originally, Begg hoped to give her two lead-up runs in Adelaide. However, she would be required to head to Adelaide early and Begg would prefer to monitor her campaign in person. "The problem is we can't take them over ourselves and if they go over they have to stay there," Begg said. "At the moment I think I'll keep her here and try and get her ready for one race, and one race only." Beauty Bolt will run over 1400 metres at Caulfield on Saturday in a three-year-old fillies event.

Affair To Remember on Australasian Oaks path

Dan O'Sullivan hopes Affair To Remember (Toronado) gets a belated chance to confirm Australasian Oaks (Gr 1, 2000m) plans when she runs in today's Clanbrooke Racing Handicap (1600m) at Sandown Lakeside, a week after a race she was due to run in was abandoned because of a coronavirus scare. Ballarat-based O'Sullivan holds Group 1 ambitions for the filly who finished third first-up on the Hillside circuit on March 11. "We'll still aim to head for the Oaks and hopefully get some local success (for her South Australian owners)," O'Sullivan told Racing.com. "If the rules and regulations are still in place that we have currently, she'll race (today), have one more run in Victoria and then she'll head across to South Australia for the Oaks. If things change and she needs to leave sooner, there's the Schweppervescence Stakes (1800m) at Morphettville on April 18 she could head to for a lead-up."

The cream always rises to the top!

Group 1 winners such as Catchy, Pinot and Age Of Fire.

And other exciting performers like Dragon Leap, Pretty Brazen, Tuscan Queen, Quick Thinker, Southbank, Californiadeepshot, Sense Of Honour, Canadian Spice, Chianti etc.

They are just some of the many recent top-class graduates from Coolmore Australia at the Inglis Easter yearling sale.

Beau Zoom set for Sandown fresh

Western Australian trainer Neville Parnham hopes promising three-year-old Beau Zoom (Brazen Beau) can showcase the stable's now permanent Victorian presence when he resumes at Sandown Lakeside today. The colt, who was placed once from two starts last campaign, is being trained out of Parnham's satellite stable at Geelong and is slated for a first-up run in the Ladbrokes Plate (1300m) with Damien Oliver in the saddle. "He was always a really nice yearling and we've had a good opinion of him," Parnham told Racing.com. "He's thickened up since last preparation and he's developing into the horse we knew he'd be. He's had two good jump outs at Mornington and most recently at Geelong and he's working really well at home. He's had the groundwork and I'd expect that he can get out to a mile this preparation, but we're in no rush."

Happy Clapper wins trial

Pat Webster's old warrior Happy Clapper (Teofilo) tuned up for Saturday week's Queen Elizabeth Stakes (Gr 1, 2000m) with a trial win at Randwick yesterday. The nine-year-old has finished third in two of the last four runnings of the Queen Elizabeth but after only beating one runner home at his last start in the George Ryder Stakes (Gr 1, 1500m), Webster believes his stable star is looking for more ground. "He's looking for 2000 metres now," Webster said.

Animate lands Provincial Championships Qualifier

Kris Lees has added to his chances in the Provincial Championships Final (1400m), with three-year-old Animate (Animal Kingdom) booking his spot after taking out the final qualifying heat at Newcastle yesterday. The first three placegetters in each of the five heats earned a spot in the final and Animate's victory means Lees has qualified five runners for the $400,000 race at Randwick on Saturday week. Animate defeated the Kim Waugh-trained Oxford Tycoon (Written Tycoon) by three quarters of a length with the Damien Lane-trained Oakfield Captain (Testa Rossa) coming home in third in the event, which was meant to be run at Wyong last Saturday.

RV to cap field and race meeting size

Victorian fields will be capped at 14 at metropolitan meetings and 12 at country meetings with no more than nine races to be run on the one day as the sport continues amid the coronavirus pandemic. However Racing Victoria may use its discretion on field sizes for black-type races. Chief executive Giles Thompson said RV continued to review the situation on a daily basis. "Whilst racing and training is currently permitted to continue in Victoria under strict biosecurity protocols, we cannot rest on our laurels," Thompson said. "The introduction of maximum field limits of 14 starters at metropolitan tracks and 12 at country tracks seeks to further reduce the number of required race day attendees and assists in ensuring appropriate social distancing occurs. In determining the differing field limits between metropolitan and country tracks, consideration was given to size, infrastructure and average field sizes."

2020 Cox Plate could be cancelled

Planning for the 100th Cox Plate (Gr 1, 2040m) has been put on hold until the Moonee Valley Racing Club (MVRC) can ascertain the full effects of the coronavirus pandemic. MVRC chief executive Michael Browell said he would prefer to wait a year and hold the milestone Cox Plate in 2021 if this year's race was to be run without a crowd on course. "One of the options we may have to consider is putting a line through the Cox Plate this year if everything isn't back in normal working conditions and then postpone it until October 2021," Browell told RSN927. "This is my personal view. My least preferred model would be running the Cox Plate with no-one on course. It's the 100th year. We've got a massive celebration planned, flying people in from around the world for this, but I'm not going to pre-empt what the decision might be."

RV may need to support participants for a year

Racing Victoria said yesterday that, with the aid of the state government, it could support industry participants for up to 12 months

if racing is forced to shut down because of the coronavirus pandemic. Chairman Brian Kruger said RV had more than $70 million in its sustainability fund that could be used in combination with aid from the Victorian government to support the industry for between six and 12 months. "I think the industry is in a really fortunate position in that we have got those funds there that we can use in this sort of event," Kruger told RSN927. "We do get enormous support from the government and I have no reason to expect that won't continue. I'm confident that we as an industry can work through this and come out the other side, but it's going to require everybody doing the right thing in the short term and making some tough decisions."

Nichols urges participants to remain vigilant

Racing Australia chairman Greg Nichols has urged racing participants to not 'drop your guard' in relation to containing the coronavirus to enable racing to continue, in an open letter to about 74,000 full-time participants. He said RA has three main objectives which include to continue racing; to maintain employment for participants; and to ensure that equine welfare is kept at the highest level.

Auction houses working with trainers to manage debt

Mick Price, like most trainers and syndicators do each year, has speculated by buying horses at recent yearling sales and estimates that he owes auction houses Magic Millions and Inglis more than $500,000 for horses he is yet to on-sell to clients. The coronavirus outbreak has made that harder, but the experienced Melbourne trainer says the auction houses are working closely with his stable to ensure the debt remains manageable. "I haven't counted it up exactly, but I would have upwards of $500,000 owing on yearlings," Price told Racing.com. "Magic Millions and William Inglis, to their credit, have rung and said they're supporting our situation. The whole world has to support each other, don't they - banks, tenants and landlords - because it's a global problem."

NSW standalone metro meetings moved

The standalone metropolitan-standard race meetings in NSW slated for Hawkesbury, Gosford and Scone later this autumn have been moved to Sydney racecourses. Racing NSW chief executive Peter V'landys last night told Sky Racing that the trio of meetings would not be conducted at the designated racecourses in 2020. "Unfortunately, the standalone meetings at Hawkesbury, Gosford and Scone, the Saturday meetings, will be run in the metropolitan area. The majority of the horses come from the metropolitan area and we need to have the least amount of travel and we've got the highest biosecurity measures in the metropolitan area, so we will conduct those meetings in the metropolitan area. The clubs have made significant losses running them with no crowds, so it's better to just keep them (in Sydney)." The Hawkesbury meeting was scheduled for April 25, Gosford was on May 9 and Scone was due to be run on May 15 and 16.

Prize-money in Western Australia to be cut

Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWAA) announced yesterday that it was making reductions to its own cost base, as well as cutting prize-money in the state due to the coronavirus crisis. RWAA will be reducing prize-money and associated bonuses by 20 per cent, effective from next Monday. RWAA chief Richard Burt said the necessary social distancing and containment restrictions caused by the Covid-19 virus had impacted significantly on its income through the WATAB. "National and international sports and international racing has all but shut down in addition to the recent complete closure of our 330-outlet retail network which accounts for around 50% of the WATAB business," Burt said. Prize-money and bonuses across all three codes of racing will be reduced by 20 per cent, with the exception of some races where current stakes levels must be retained for legislative reasons.

Gooree Park yearlings at Riverside

Mudgee's Gooree Park Stud have sent their five-yearling Inglis Easter draft to Sydney to provide further opportunities for inspections from prospective buyers. Among their draft are yearlings from some of Gooree's most famous families, including the Medaglia D'Oro (El Prado) half-brother to Smart Missile (Fastnet Rock), as well as yearlings out of Group-winning mares Queen Of The Hill (Danehill), Romantic Moon (More Than Ready) and Sultry Feeling (Encosta De Lago). They can be viewed at Inglis' Riverside Stables. Also sending their draft elsewhere for inspection is Queensland-based KBL Thoroughbreds, whose six yearlings can be viewed at Valiant Stud.

QTIS foal registration deadline extended

Racing Queensland has confirmed that the early option payment for 2018 foals for the QTIS scheme has been extended from yesterday, March 31, until further notice, due to the ongoing effects of the coronavirus pandemic.

Hong Kong owners circling Roman Republic

David Vandyke has high hopes for debut winner Roman Republic (Roman Emperor) and believes he could be off to Hong Kong soon with the trainer revealing he has had hefty offers for the three-year-old gelding. "He was entered for Doomben last Saturday and is nominated for Doomben next Saturday but I'm being very careful where to place him," Vandyke said. "We've had a six-figure offer which was knocked back to sell him to Hong Kong but I'll be very surprised if he doesn't go there eventually. That's why I'm careful placing him and hopefully he can put a few wins together here first."

Wilson to take up VRC chairmanship

Incumbent Victoria Racing Club (VRC) chief executive Neil Wilson will replace Amanda Elliott as chair of the prestigious organisation. The VRC board yesterday confirmed that in December it had decided that Wilson would replace Elliott but a timeframe had not been put on a handover. Wilson will remain as chief executive in the short-term while the club attempts to negotiate the fallout from the coronavirus pandemic. "As stated at our AGM in December, the board has had a clear view of who should be our next chairman for some time," Elliott said. "The board decided on Friday that it intends to appoint Neil Wilson, our current chief executive officer, as the next chairman. However, because of the extremely challenging Covid-19 situation, and with stability and continuity being crucial at this time, the effective date of that baton change needs to be flexible."

Mackay trainer allegedly caught with tubing equipment

Queensland Racing Integrity Commission (QRIC) stewards ordered the scratching of three horses at Mackay yesterday after their trainer was found in possession of equipment allegedly capable of administering alkalising agents. "A no notice stewards inspection at a Mackay property this morning located equipment and substances which were seized for analysis," a QRIC statement read. "The trainer's three thoroughbred horses engaged to run at Mackay today were scratched and tested for prohibited substances." QRIC commissioner Ross Barnett added that stewards intend to continue conducting 'no notice inspections and testing of participants' to ensure the integrity of the sport.

Inquiry into Swan Hill race fall adjourned

A stewards' inquiry into a fall at Swan Hill on Monday, which saw apprentice Liam Riordan suffer a fractured collarbone, has been adjourned. Riordan came off Incarnadine (Reliable Man) as the field passed the winning post in a 1600-metre maiden. Stewards questioned Group 1-winning rider Jordan Childs and Jarrod Fry but have adjourned the inquiry until the apprentice is fit to give evidence. A veterinary examination revealed Incarnadine suffered broken ribs in the incident.

Watkins injured at Grafton

After being dislodged from Cotton Caper (Mossman) on the way to the barriers ahead of Race 2 at Grafton yesterday, Jasen Watkins was found to have no serious injuries. However, he reported soreness in his shoulder and thumb. Watkins was assessed by ambulance officers and was subsequently taken to Coffs Harbour Hospital for further assessment.

Pitman calls for penalty-free racing

Leading South Island trainer Michael Pitman has a clear picture of what New Zealand racing should look like upon its return. "We might have to race for a bag of peanuts, but we would have to have open entry penalty-free racing just to get racing back on the agenda. That's the main thing," Pitman said. "We could be racing over 800 metres and 1000 metres for $2,000, but it needs to be penalty-free." Pitman, who trains more than 60 horses in partnership with his son Matthew, admitted that he is a little bit frustrated watching racing continue in Australia during New Zealand's Level 4 lockdown, but he hopes these measures will help quicken the return to racing. "If they are out for a month it should only take about six weeks for horses to be fit enough to be competitive. In a perfect world I can see racing returning around July," he said.

43 for Heart's Cry

Japanese stallion Heart's Cry (Sunday Silence) registered his 43rd individual stakes winner at Nakayama yesterday when Suave Aramis (5 h ex Bay To Bay by Sligo Bay) took the March Stakes (Gr 3, 1800m) on the dirt. The Naosuke Sugai-trained Suave Aramis settled handy in the run and swept to the lead on the turn, holding off the late surge of Group 1 placegetter Clincher (Deep Sky) to score by a neck. Rapier Wit (Henny Hughes) was a further two and a half lengths back in third. Now a 19-year-old, Heart's Cry stands at Shadai Stallion Station in Hokkaido.

Plan B enacted for Southern Legend

Southern Legend (Not A Single Doubt) will take on an unscheduled assignment in the Chairman's Trophy (Gr 2, 1600m) at Sha Tin on Sunday with plans for the rest of his campaign being a muddle of coronavirus-induced uncertainty. All roads were supposed to lead to the Kranji Mile (Gr 3, 1600m) in Singapore on May 23, but the racing calendar in the Lion City has been reduced to one meeting a week until at least the end of April with the programme less than certain beyond that. "The plan had been the 'three-peat' in Singapore," trainer Caspar Fownes said. "He was all set to go there, so I gave him a freshen-up after a couple of disappointing runs but now we really don't know what's going on with Singapore. We've had to change plans and luckily he's been ticking over fitness-wise; we just gave him a trial last week and gave him this entry."

Buddies aims to build on strong dirt credentials

The John Moore-trained Buddies (So You Think) returns to the Sha Tin dirt as he looks to build on an impressive record on his favourite surface in tomorrow night's finale, the Class 2 Cheung Sha Handicap (1650m). A three-time course and distance winner, the four-year-old gelding is yet to finish outside of the top three from six attempts on the dirt track, but with showers forecast to continue through the week in Hong Kong, there is the likelihood of a wet surface this time. Moore, though, was quick to quash any concern that the track condition would be a hindrance to the gelding's chances. "The conditions are perfect, he's by So You Think and they love the cut in the ground, I've had a few of them and I not only think they are good in the wet but they're good on the dirt too," the handler said.

Singapore Derby rescheduled

The Singapore Turf Club announced yesterday that it will reschedule the Singapore Derby (Listed, 2000m), which was to be held on April 18 at Kranji, to a future date to be determined in the coming weeks. The club also announced the cancellation of the Saas Fee Stakes (Listed, 1200m) on April 18. The club will only be holding one local race meeting per week in April, on Fridays, and members of the public will not be admitted into the racecourse. "The safety and well-being of visitors to the Singapore racecourse remains the club's top priority and we are committed to continuing to operate our business in a safe and responsible manner," the STC said in a media release.

Goffs London Sale cancelled

The Goffs London Sale, which has become a familiar pre-Royal Ascot event at Kensington Palace Gardens each year, has been cancelled due to the shake-up of the European sales calendar because of the coronavirus pandemic. The sale has seen Royal Ascot runners change hands in the past, including Forever In Dreams (Dream Ahead) last year before running second in the Commonwealth Cup (Gr 1, 6f), while Australians have been active at the event, purchasing horses like Mr Marathon Man (So You Think), Dark Acclaim (Dark Angel), Pacodali (Paco Boy), Duca Valentino (Holy Roman Emperor), Cafe Society (Motivator) and Doomben Cup (Gr 1, 2000m) winner Pornichet (Vespon). The company has instead provisionally moved the Goffs UK Breeze-Up Sale, which was scheduled for late April, to the days leading up to Royal Ascot, a spot it held before the London sale was introduced.

Brutal retired to Newgate Farm after abandonment of Queensland carnival

BY TIM ROWE | @ANZ_NEWS

The coronavirus outbreak has forced Doncaster Mile (Gr 1, 1600m) winner Brutal (O'Reilly) into immediate retirement rather than enjoying a Queensland winter campaign before heading to stud later this year.

The Group 1 winner, a striking juvenile-winning four-year-old entire by champion New Zealand sire O'Reilly (Last Tycoon), will form part of the Newgate Farm stallion roster in 2020 having been successful in five of his ten starts.

Trained by Michael, Wayne and John Hawkes-trained, Brutal was being set for a Stradbroke Handicap (Gr 1, 1400m) swansong after a lead-up preparation aimed at the Doomben 10,000 (Gr 1, 1200m) and the Kingsford-Smith Cup (Gr 1, 1300m) before Racing Queensland scrapped the carnival to save money as a result of the coronavirus pandemic.

"He was always going to be a horse, on form and time analysis, who would become a true Group 1 weight-for-age horse and be top-class," Newgate Farm director of stallions Bruce Slade said yesterday.

"He did something very special at three, winning the Doncaster, then a few things didn't quite go right with him and now we have been struck with 'corona'.

"The good thing is, we've spoken to a lot of breeders about this horse over the past few months and there's a really positive vibe out there for him and I expect that he is going to cover a full book of mares at a really realistic fee given the circumstances of this year.

"He's a black cat, black kittens type horse. He's a magnificent specimen purchased by John Hawkes as a yearling and he cost a fair bit of money. When people see him they will be blown away - he will leave a good commercial type of yearling."

Newgate Farm principal Henry Field and partners swooped on the then colt, who won his first three starts including a five-length demolition at Caulfield in July of his two-year-old season followed by a further two Listed victories in Melbourne, after he won last year's Doncaster Mile at just his seventh start.

Rupert Legh, who raced Brutal from the beginning, is set to support the horse at stud alongside high-profile investors Winstar Farm, GIG Racing and Breeding, Highgrove Bloodstock and Dahlia Bloodstock.

He returned in the spring to win the Premiere Stakes (Gr 2, 1200m) first-up at Randwick, his first start for his new connections, and also ran third in the Sydney Stakes (Gr 3, 1200m) before pulling up sore with a bone chip when unplaced in the Golden Eagle (1500m) last November.

"We have got some great shareholders on board already, including ourselves, who will support him with some great mares and I know how much interest we've had on the horse," Slade said.

"Touch wood, everything goes to plan from here on in with 'corona' and everything else. He's retired now but we won't (officially) launch him until later down the track when we've got a bit more clarity around 'corona' and there's some light at the end of the tunnel."

Brutal, who was a NZ$220,000 New Zealand Bloodstock Yearling Sale purchase in 2017 from the Mapperley Stud draft, is the best of two stakes winners out of the stakes-placed mare

Alberton Princess (Golan), herself a three-quarter sister to Lady Alberton (Golan) and a half-sister to Te Akau Rose (Thorn Park), both of whom were Group winners.

Adding depth to his female family is the fact that Brutal's family includes Group 3-winning juvenile Cavalry Rose (Charge Forward), and fellow high-class performers in Testarhythm (Testa Rossa) and Wyndspelle (Iffraaj), victorious in this season's Captain Cook Stakes (Gr 1, 1600m) in New Zealand.

Legh, who also shares in the ownership of fellow stallion prospects Exceedance (Exceed And Excel) and Alabama Express (Redoute's Choice), believes Brutal had more to offer on the racecourse but connections' hand was forced due to Covid-19.

"The horse has never looked better or worked better in his life," Legh told Racing.com.

"We're that disappointed we couldn't get to Queensland and run in races such as the Stradbroke but our intentions have now been all undone.

"In order to prepare the horse properly for life at stud, to properly let down and get the mares right, it's the right time to make the decision - it's too late in two or three months' time."

A service fee for Brutal has not yet been announced.

STEVE MORAN

This crisis may bring much-needed change, but racing's treasures a tale as old as time

The Melbourne Cup

GETTY IMAGES

BY STEVE MORAN | @ANZ_NEWS

What to write about given the current circumstances?

A prediction, perhaps?
Surprise Baby wins the 2020

Melbourne Cup by six lengths - in the absence of Vow And Declare who'd already emulated Northerly's Caulfield Cup and Cox Plate double and was bound for the Hong Kong international meeting.

The Horsham-trained gelding won the Cup, defeating 17 other locally trained horses and six New Zealanders, before a record crowd of 150,000 after the Victoria Racing Club (VRC) opened the entire infield to spectators following unprecedented demand in the wake of the government's waiving of the ban on mass gatherings.

The TAB reported record turnover and estimated that one in every two adult Australians had a flutter on the Cup.

"We're shocked," said one senior VRC official. "We really thought Australia's race was all about the overseas runners."

This probably won't happen and I fear that little will change when, or if, this coronavirus pandemic is contained.

Everything will return to self-interest. It always does.

However, the current situation has demonstrated that where there's a will there is absolutely a way (a fast-tracked one) and heightened a collective approach to our health and prosperity.

So if we can hope, can be a little less sceptical for a moment, then let's pray that Richard Freedman's comments last week will be paid some heed. He said: "We are being forced to rethink everything because of an external force that we never saw coming, but we should take the opportunity to reset the way we do things for the good."

But, for now, with so much noise about what's going on - from a general health and not just a racing perspective - I really don't think it's appropriate to be indulging in too much self-absorbed editorialising.

Rather, we should be thankful that - at least at the time of writing - racing is continuing and providing a huge level of distraction and interest for a large percentage of the populace.

It has certainly reminded me that, while at one level, racing is indeed an industry and critically a massive one which is a huge employer; it is good old-fashioned fun for the vast majority of people who follow the sport.

They are not necessarily the needy or the greedy and certainly not professional punters. They are mums and dads and accountants and chippies who like to have a look at the form, or follow their favourite competitors or work out their system runners - with red and blue scrawls over the form guide - and then validate their opinion with a couple of dollars; two or five or ten bucks.

They're not much interested in sectional timing data or speed maps. Nor the pattern or prize-money but they know a good race when they see one and could probably refine our black-type system better than any panel of handicappers or race club officials.

They'll have a wager at Narromine if need be, as was certainly the case last week when the Victorian meeting was abandoned and turnover on the NSW meeting increased 180 per cent.

They'll be punting up a storm this weekend regardless of the prize money cuts for the Championships races and they couldn't care less if The Everest and the Melbourne Cup are worth "only" $2 million this year. And it won't stop them buying a small share in a horse if they've got the "readies" at the time - although I'm sure a wider spread of prize-money would precipitate greater investment at the lower end, if not across the board.

They don't mind going to the 'picnics' so the kids can see the horses and they can "bring their own".

They love a last-start winner backing up in seven days. They love Ollie (Damien Oliver) going to the bush to ride two for Danny O'Brien. Just as they did, in days gone by, when The Professor (Roy Higgins) went to Werribee to ride two for Angus Armanasco.

They love bragging to their mates that they nailed the last trifecta, for a $12 outlay, even if it only paid $70.

They love tipping a winner, almost regardless of how much they happened to win. They'll smile through gritted teeth and mutter, "yeah, did OK" even when they haven't backed the horse they tipped at the pub the night before.

They've invariably got a favourite horse of all time and no amount of reasoned argument will persuade them otherwise.

They invariably had 50 cents each-way on the Melbourne Cup winner when they were 15 and that, as they say, was end of story.

And no, this is not autobiographical but I did have five bob each way on Light Fingers, at 15/1, in the 1965 Melbourne Cup. I was eight. And like many before me, and many since, I thought: "How long has this been going on?"

I did win around $3000, a bloody fortune then, when Bonor Bridge won the second leg of the daily double at Flemington - about ten years later when I was in Year 12 at school. The TAB agent was a family friend and it was no problem getting on, at lunchtime, after pedalling the pushbike from school.

That was the day the mighty Reckless won his first race - at his 34th start from memory and he won the first leg of the double. Reckless, of course, in 1977 became the only horse to win the Sydney, Adelaide and Brisbane Cups

AND NO, THIS IS NOT AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL BUT I DID HAVE FIVE BOB EACH WAY ON LIGHT FINGERS, AT 15/1, IN THE 1965 MELBOURNE CUP. I WAS EIGHT. AND LIKE MANY BEFORE ME, AND MANY SINCE, I THOUGHT: "HOW LONG HAS THIS BEEN GOING ON?"

in the same year and the fairytale was almost completed when he finished second to Gold And Black in the Melbourne Cup.

He was trained by Aaron Treve "Tommy" Woodcock - who, of course, had been the strapper for the mighty 1930 Melbourne Cup winner Phar Lap and had accompanied the champion Australian galloper in his win at Agua Caliente, in Mexico, before his mysterious death.

Reckless was bred by the two women that owned him - Jean Godfrey and her daughter Joan Walker.

You can Google a recent and wonderful Michael Felgate interview, on RSN 927, with Joan Walker. Or you can search for Phar Lap's Agua Caliente video or perhaps Crisp's gallant but almost tragic performance in the 1973 Grand National at Aintree, which is getting some social media airplay at present as we endeavour to amuse ourselves. Particularly with no Grand National this weekend.

It is these stories, these people, these horses and the joy of turning a few bob into a few more bob - aside from all the other machinations of the game - which provide inspiration and do so arguably more so now than at any other time. May we continue to race.
