Hawkes' using Sires as building block for talented Ole Kirk

Written Tycoon colt from family of Black Caviar and All Too Hard earns shot at Group 1

Ole Kirk

BY TIM ROWE | @ANZ_NEWS

Team Hawkes is closely mirroring the interstate platform used eight years ago for top-class sprinter-miler All Too Hard (Casino Prince) as the family run stable attempts to go one better in Saturday's $500,000 Inglis Sires (registered as ATC Sires' Produce Stakes) (Gr 1, 1400m) with the stallion's close relation Ole Kirk (Written Tycoon).

The first foal out of champion mare Black Caviar's (Bel Esprit) sister, the unraced Naturale, Ole Kirk surprised his owners by taking out the Talindert Stakes (Listed, 1100m) at his first start at Flemington in February, the same race Michael, Wayne and John Hawkes identified as the ideal starting point for their former four-time Group 1-winning colt All Too Hard.

The Vinery Stud-based stallion All Too Hard, who is a half-brother to Black Caviar and Naturale, won his first three starts - Flemington's VRC Sires' Produce Stakes (Gr 2, 1400m) and the Pago Pago Stakes (Gr 2, 1200m) in Sydney followed on from his debut success - before Pierro (Lonhro) had his measure in the Inglis Sires.

Magic Millions reschedules National sale to late July

Magic Millions has moved to reassure clients about the Gold Coast National Weanling, Broodmare and Yearling Sale going ahead this season by pushing it back to July in the hope of being able to conduct a live auction.

The sales company, like rival Inglis who next week will hold its Australian Easter Yearling Sale via its digital platform, has been forced to make changes to its schedule due to the coronavirus pandemic which has heavily restricted the movement of people and shut down many business sectors.

Late yesterday, Magic Millions announced that the National sale had been pushed back by two months from its initial late May-June dates, with the broodmare and weanling sessions now tentatively slated for July 20 to 24, while three days, from July 28 to 30, has been set aside for the yearling catalogue. Sales News page 9>>

Raced by a syndicate headed by Neil Werrett, who also part-owns the unbeaten Black Caviar, Ole Kirk did not quite match All Too Hard in the VRC Sires, finishing a luckless third.

The son of Written Tycoon (Iglesia) was also not given the chance to tackle the Pago Pago Stakes, the Hawkes' instead using a barrier trial at Randwick last week as the colt's lead-up to the Inglis Sires.

If he is to go one better than All Too Hard, it would certainly assure himself of a place on a stallion roster in the years to come.

Brett Bradley, himself the breeder of this season's The Everest (1200m)-winning colt Yes Yes Yes (Rubick), works alongside Werrett at the Galileo Funds business and he and wife Andrea also bought into Ole Kirk as a yearling after he brought $675,000 at the 2019 Inglis Melbourne Premier Yearling Sale.

"He surprised us a little bit first-up because his jump-outs down in Victoria were solid enough, but he wasn't blowing the other horses away," Bradley said this week while in self-isolation at his Wagga home in regional NSW after returning from an international work trip.

"But the Hawkes team were very bullish about him even though he wasn't tearing up the track in the jump-outs as he was doing everything right at home. That is why John was pretty keen to get him in that Listed race first-up because he knew that he had ability."

Connections resisted the temptation to send the colt immediately to Sydney after his Talindert performance in a typically patient approach from Team Hawkes.

BRETT BRADLEY

"The plan was to stay down in Melbourne and go to the Sires down there, which is what they did with All Too Hard, and he should have won that race if you watch the replay," he said.

"It was pretty hard to watch but he ran third and at least he showed that it wasn't just a one-off (in the Talindert)."

Last week's Randwick barrier trial victory over 1050 metres reinforced the opinion that

All Too Hard

connections have of Ole Kirk, who will be ridden by Tommy Berry on Saturday from barrier three.

"(The Hawkes') obviously have the reputation of taking their time and not just throwing a horse in a race because it is bred well or it is a popular race," Bradley said.

"They only race when they think they are right and they think they are a legitimate chance of winning. For him to come up to Sydney and do everything right and be right to go on Saturday is exciting. You can have confidence that the horse is right to run."

For obvious reasons, Werrett was always going to be attracted to the pedigree of the Gilgai Farm-bred Ole Kirk and Bradley revealed that the prominent owner had a number of people inspect the horse on his behalf at last year's Victorian yearling sale.

It was then left to Mark Player's International Thoroughbred Solutions to handle the bidding and it took $675,000 to land the colt. Bradley bought into the colt soon after.

"Neil had his eye on the horse for quite a long time because the dam is a full-sister to Black Caviar," Bradley recalled.

"He wanted to have a look at him and he had a few people look at him and then he had the Hawkes' go down and inspect him as well and they gave Neil the green light.

"Rick Jamieson, who was the breeder and has got the mare, stayed in and said he would at the sale, so we knew that he had confidence in the horse.

"The Hawkes' loved him and that gave Neil the confidence to bid and we came in after Neil secured the horse."

Bradley enjoying Yes Yes Yes ride

Meanwhile, Bradley is contemplating what to do this year with his small band of broodmares - the best being Sin Sin Sin (Fantastic Light) who is the dam of the soon-to-be Coolmore Stud-based first season sire Yes Yes Yes.

"It has been a lot of fun (seeing Yes Yes Yes win The Everest) and you have to enjoy it when you get these horses because it is pretty rare to get winners, let alone a good horse who wins big races," he said.

"You never take it for granted and just enjoy it while you can and hopefully something else good comes along."

While not in the ownership of Yes Yes Yes, who was retired earlier this year, Bradley intends on sending a mare to the stallion later this year.

"But I don't think I've got the right mare at the moment. I've got a few mares up in the Hunter Valley and as soon as they announced that he was retired and was going to stud, I went through my mares and matched them up to see who I could send, but none of the ones I have are standouts to go to him," he said.

"I guess that is a good excuse to go and find one and I definitely would like to send one to him, so I will certainly be on the lookout for a mare. I'd like to go first season as well - go to him early and see what happens."

Sin Sin Sin's yearling colt by Sebring (More Than Ready) was bought by Melbourne trainer Lloyd Kennewell and Group 1 Bloodstock's Mathew Becker at the Magic Millions Gold Coast Yearling Sale in January for $700,000.

After failing to get in foal in 2018, Sin Sin Sin is currently carrying a foal to Zoustar (Northern Meteor).

"If the Zoustar is a filly, it will be a tough decision because I would probably like to sell the Zoustar just from a business perspective and what I would like to have is a full-sister to Yes Yes Yes by sending her back to Rubick," he said.

"If you end up with a Rubick filly, you'd probably keep her and race her and then have her to breed from.

"That is the strategy, but as we all know, you never know what is going to happen."

Whether a return date for Sin Sin Sin with Rubick happens this year or not remains to be seen.

"She is getting a bit older, so whether we go to another higher profile and proven stallion again this year or not, I just haven't decided yet," he said.

"Rubick is still improving all the time. He has winners pretty much every week and he is making a name for himself, so he is an option, but we will see what happens with this Zoustar foal and whether we look at him again or one of the big-name, proven stallions."

AQUIS SELLING AT THE 2020
INGLIS AUSTRALIAN EASTER YEARLING SALE

AUSTRALIA

Inglis to hold test online auction

Inglis will conduct a test online auction tomorrow to assist bidders unfamiliar with the platform ahead of next week's Australian Easter Yearling Sale which will be conducted solely via the company's website due to the coronavirus outbreak. "While we have over 4000 registered users built up from our highly-successful twice-monthly Inglis Digital Online Auctions, there will obviously be new clients using the online portal for the first time for what is our first ever Easter Yearling Sale online," Inglis managing director Mark Webster said. "This test auction on Friday will give them and everybody a chance to trial the software, get a feel for how the online auction platform works and make themselves comfortable so when the Easter Sale goes live at 10am Sunday morning, everybody will know how the process works and how simple it is." Two for I'm All The Talk

Western Australia-based first season stallion I'm All The Talk (Stratum) yesterday sired his second juvenile winner when Em Tee Aye (2g ex Azita by Oratorio) took out the Amelia Park Plate (1400m) at Ascot. Trained by Trevor Andrews, Em Tee Aye had been runner-up at his previous start at Bunbury before breaking through by three quarters of a length over No Surrender (Universal Ruler) and Queen Brown (Patronize). Em Tee Aye's half-sister by Playing God (Blackfriars) was bought by Robert Gulberti from Mungrup Stud at the Magic Millions Perth Yearling Sale in February for $60,000. I'm All The Talk, who stands at Mungrup Stud for a fee of $5,500 (inc GST), is also the sire of the twice-winning, stakes-placed filly Watch Me Dance.

Three-pronged Sires attack for Snowdens

Peter Snowden, who trains in partnership with his son Paul, knows a thing or two about winning the ATC Sires' Produce Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m), having won it four times in the last ten years. He believes one of his three-pronged attack can get the job done on Saturday at Randwick. The Snowdens have Aim (Star Witness), King's Legacy (Redoute's Choice) and Bartley (Written Tycoon) set to line up in the two-year-old feature. Peter Snowden said: "I'm happy to have all three horses there and all three have genuine winning chances."

Bivouac on target for T J Smith challenge

James Cummings is forgiving of Bivouac's (Exceed And Excel) last-start defeat in the William Reid Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) and expects the colt to show his best in a star-studded edition of the T J Smith Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) at Randwick on Saturday. "His finish in the William Reid was not up to his usual standard and I'm of the strong opinion that the track was his undoing," Cummings said. "Everything about him in his training between runs has me visualising another ripping performance at Randwick, which is nothing short of what he will need in this year's T J Smith. It is a real horse race." Bivouac is one of nine Group 1 winners in the 13-horse field for the feature sprint.

Castelvecchio aims to emulate sire in Derby

can match what his sire was able to achieve in winning Saturday's Australian Derby (Gr 1, 2400m) at Randwick. Castelvecchio steps up to 2400 metres for the first time in the three-year-old staying feature and will be the colt's only chance to record a Classic success. "He can only run in one Derby so it's definitely worth a try," Litt said. "We thought it is definitely worth a crack. The 2400 is obviously an unknown but we all think he can run it. The feedback from jockeys suggests that he can. His work has always pointed that he would get better with further, so we'll know on Saturday." If Castelvecchio wins the Derby, he may be given his chance to back-up in the Queen Elizabeth Stakes (Gr 1, 2000m) at Randwick the following week.

Quackerjack set for Doncaster Mile tilt

Mark Newnham has taken a tailor-made approach to the Doncaster Mile (Gr 1, 1600m) with Quackerjack (Not A Single Doubt), safe in the knowledge that the four-year-old was guaranteed a berth in Sydney's most prestigious mile event. The four-year-old earned that ballot-free spot with his win at the course and the distance in the Villiers Stakes (Gr 2, 1600m) in December. Newnham believes Quackerjack performs best with three weeks between runs, so he has given his charge that amount of time since his last-start fourth in the Ajax Stakes (Gr 2, 1500m). "His preparation has gone the way I wanted it," Newnham said. "He was three weeks into the Goulburn Cup which he won. He was three weeks into The Gong which he was narrowly beaten in and he was three weeks into the Villiers which he won. He's got good Randwick form, good Randwick form over a mile and he's down in the weights. He's looking good."

Draw no obstacle for Mr Quickie

Mr Quickie

SPORTPIX

Phillip Stokes was hoping for a wider draw than what he got in the All-Star Mile (1600m) (4) for Mr Quickie (Shamus Award) in Saturday's Doncaster Mile but a barrier of 23 - into 19 if all four emergencies come out - was a bit wider than he hoped. Last year's Queensland Derby (Gr 1, 2400m) winner will be ridden by the ever-experienced Glyn Schofield and Stokes believes that is a big plus. "He won't be getting blocked for a run," Stokes told Racing.com. "He's a very talented jockey. We'll obviously tell him about the horse and what we think but he would have done his replays and he would have done his homework."

Buffalo River to run despite draw, weight

With uncertainty over how long racing can continue in the wake of the coronavirus crisis, Mike Moroney has decided to take his chance with Buffalo River (Noble Mission) in Saturday's Jack Elliott Handicap (1400m) at Caulfield. Buffalo River has been allocated 63 kilograms for the Benchmark 78 affair, which will come down to 60 kilograms with Thomas Stockdale's three kilo claim. He has also drawn wide in gate 13. "You might scratch one week and find they're not on the next, so for that reason he'll be running," Moroney said. "I'm not that concerned about the draw as he sometimes can be a bit slow to move and then if he draws an inside gate and they cross he can get over-racing. He's on the fresh side so that will be a little bit harder, but if he can relax, then he's a chance."

Broadwayandfourth may be in need of spell

Mitch Freedman has warned that Crockett Stakes (Listed, 1200m)-winning filly Broadwayandfourth (Smart Missile), who is set to resume in Saturday's Selangor Turf Club Handicap (1100m) at Caulfield, may be looking for the paddock. The filly was unplaced in a Werribee barrier trial in February before again finishing well back at Cranbourne on March 3. "I was actually really disappointed with her most recent jump-out at Cranbourne, but we found out later that she had an inflamed throat," Freedman told Racing.com. "She's worked on the grass since and the work suggested that she's feeling better and ready for the weekend. She's been up for a long time, so we'll see if she can perform on race day or if she's ready for a spell."

VOBIS Guineas for Moonlight Maid

Plans have been changed for Broadwayandfourth's stablemate, the Edward Manifold Stakes (Gr 2, 1600m)-winning Moonlight Maid (Puissance De Lune), due to the cancellation of the Queensland winter carnival. The filly pleased Mitch Freedman with her first-up sixth in the Sunline Stakes (Gr 2, 1600m) at Moonee Valley on March 20 and will look to a VOBIS race later this month for the three-year-old. "She's a good horse, I'm really excited about this preparation and her first-up performance was good," Freedman said. "She looks great, she'll head to the VOBIS Guineas and then to the SA Oaks. We had planned to go to Queensland after that, but we'll sit down and re-adjust the program now."

Grey Missile leads Edmonds' team

Unlucky Grey Missile (Red Element) has finally drawn a good barrier as he heads a big team from the Toby and Trent Edmonds training partnership at the Gold Coast tomorrow. "He has been second at his past two starts and it is no understatement to say he should have won both," Toby Edmonds said. "Grey Missile has been very brave and from barrier four on Friday he will get his chance."

Uncomplicated causes boilover

After producing an upset result with Uncomplicated (Akeed Mofeed) at the Sunshine Coast yesterday, Stuart Kendrick hopes to cause another blowout result this weekend when Eric The Eel (Olympic Glory) tackles the Australian Derby (Gr 1, 2400m) at Randwick. Uncomplicated debuted in a two-year-old maiden at the Sunshine Coast, flashing home in a blanket finish to take the prize. "I got three horses off the online sale and she was the cheapest," Kendrick said. "Early days she looked like being pretty handy and I put a couple of old friends in her, but she hadn't shown much since and I think they were thinking of throwing rocks at me. Her recent trial was just OK but she might be ready to live up to her early potential."

Baldwin caught off guard by strong fields

Veteran trainer Barry Baldwin is surprised by the quality of racing at this weekend's two metropolitan meetings in southeast Queensland. With the state now split into five regions, including north and south metropolitan areas, there will now be two major metropolitan meetings a week with the Gold Coast on Fridays and Brisbane - either Doomben or Eagle Farm - on Saturdays. Baldwin trains at Eagle Farm, which is in the northern region, and while he had intended to run some of his better horses at Doomben on Saturday, he has decided not to start them because of the strength of the fields. "It shows how much depth we have here when you can effectively halve a metropolitan meeting and still come up with good fields," he said.

Warrnambool carnival reduced to two days

The Warrnambool May Carnival will be run over two days instead of the traditional three as race meetings are rescheduled due to the coronavirus pandemic. Racing Victoria will run day one, May 5, as an all-jumps meeting, featuring the Galleywood Hurdle (3200m), the Brierly Steeplechase (3450m) and the Grand Annual Steeplechase (5500m), while day two, May 6, will be an all-flat card. Both of the carnival features, the Wangoom Handicap (Listed, 1200m) and the Warrnambool Cup (Listed, 2350m), will be run on that day. The Swan Hill three-day carnival over the June long weekend could also be reduced.

VRC working with Flemington trainers

The Victoria Racing Club is in talks with trainers based at Flemington in an endeavour to support them through the coronavirus pandemic. VRC boss Neil Wilson acknowledges that racing's ecosystem needs to be considered, with reduced prize-money having a flow-on effect to trainers and owners. "We are communicating with the trainers regularly at Flemington and like any commercial relationship we are managing that," Wilson said. "I think the basic principle is that everyone in the industry needs to share the load on this and getting that balance is really important. We are seeing the administrators and people working at clubs reducing days and salaries and some people not working at all. We've seen prize-money reduced which impacts owner returns, participant returns and then you've got trainers with loan payments no doubt and needing to still keep their horses in work appropriately."

VRC planning for November Melbourne Cup

Meanwhile, the VRC is determined to run the Melbourne Cup (Gr 1, 3200m) this year, even if it is held behind closed doors. The commitment comes after the Moonee Valley Racing Club's chief Michael Browell said his club was doing everything it could to avoid running the 100th Cox Plate (Gr 1, 2040m) without a crowd. "Obviously that would be a disappointing outcome not to have the crowds there, but a more disappointing outcome is that the COVID-19 safety position is such that we can't run the Cup at all," said VRC chief executive Neil Wilson. "Certainly our goal is this year we have a Melbourne Cup and we are certainly looking for the first Tuesday of November to be the date that it is run."

August key to internationals, says Bloodworth

Racing Victoria's General Manager Paul Bloodworth said that he would need to be able to advise international participants by August 1 whether they would be able to travel to Melbourne for the Spring Carnival. International recruitment for the Melbourne spring falls under his purview and "If we don't have an answer by early August it will be too late," he told Racing.com. "We'll keep looking at the situation to see if international participation on this year's Spring Carnival is still possible," Bloodworth said. "Horses can move freely but staff with horses for overseas trainers couldn't come to Australia under current travel restrictions. I would say that if the British, Irish and French seasons don't go ahead as planned and we do have the capacity to have international horses in the spring, it might actually lead to us having a higher demand."

Super Vobis nomination deadline extended

RV announced yesterday that the deadline to register yearlings for the Super Vobis scheme has been extended three months to July 31. This new date takes into account the recent postponement of the Inglis Melbourne Gold Sale and the Inglis Great Southern Sale, with both auctions to be held in mid-July. "Whilst racing and training is currently permitted to continue in Victoria under strict biosecurity protocols, we understand that the pandemic has already placed considerable economic pressure on many owners and breeders," RV's Executive General Manager, Racing, Greg Carpenter said. "Thus, to ease the immediate burden in this period of uncertainty we have elected to extend this year's nomination period for Super VOBIS."

Racing in Tasmania allowed to continue

The Tasmanian racing industry has been granted a special "outdoor gathering exemption" from the state's coronavirus lockdown, allowing racing to continue until Monday at least. Tasracing has put in place ten strategies as mitigating measures at all of its race meetings, including granting stewards the power to police social distancing and limiting field sizes to ten participants. "It is Tasracing's intention to introduce further measures that will support an application for an extension to the exemption," Tasracing CEO Paul Eriksson said. "We are investigating what these additional measures may look like and will announce when appropriate."

Queensland jockey, trainer premierships on hold

Racing Queensland announced yesterday that it will suspend all jockey and trainer premiership counts until further notice, due to the regional model it has implemented in the face of the Covid-19 crisis. Queensland is now split into five regions for racing purposes, with jockeys nominating one region and trainers being restricted to the area in which they are based. A Racing Queensland spokesperson said in the interest of fairness all premiership counts across the state would be suspended from Monday this week. As it stands Baylee Nothdurft is in the box seat to become the first apprentice since Zac Purton (2002-03) to win the senior metropolitan title.

Rain halts Rosehill midweek

The midweek meeting at Rosehill yesterday was abandoned after just one race with the track assessed as unsuitable for racing following heavy rain. The Matthew Smith-trained Rock My Wand (Wandjina) broke through for a big win at start five in the opener, a two-year-old maiden handicap, but it was determined shortly afterwards that the remaining seven races would not be run. The Rosehill track had already struggled through the three-day Golden Slipper Festival and 22 millimetres in the hour before racing yesterday brought the meeting to a halt.

Widdison outed for two years

Wodonga trainer Craig Widdison has been disqualified for two years over a bicarb positive. Widdison fronted Victoria's Racing Appeals and Disciplinary Board by video link-up yesterday to answer three charges related to an elevated bicarb reading taken from Cash Crisis (Master Of Design) before the gelding finished sixth at Sandown in February last year. Widdison pleaded guilty to administering, or causing to be administered, a prohibited substance for the purpose of affecting the horse's performance or behaviour. His disqualification will begin next Thursday.

NEW ZEALAND

Road To Rock gone

Road To Rock (Encosta De Lago), the sire of two-time Hong Kong Horse of the Year Beauty Generation, was euthanised last week, Wellfield Lodge announced yesterday. "He has had laminitis issues, which we have been managing for some time," Wellfield Lodge director Bill Gleeson said. "It got to the stage last week where we had to make a welfare decision on him, which was unfortunate. His numbers dropped off dramatically over the last couple of years but we have kept breeding to him with specified matings and we expect there to be a few horses in the future to come. He meant a fair bit to us at the farm, he was a real character." Road To Rock won the Queen Elizabeth Stakes (Gr 1, 2000m) and the George Main Stakes (Gr 1, 1600m) before retiring to Wellfield Lodge in 2010.

Racing expected to restart in July

New Zealand Thoroughbred Racing (NZTR) is aiming for a July 1 restart of racing in the country, chairman Dr Alan Jackson and chief executive Bernard Saundry said in an open letter published yesterday. The New Zealand racing industry is currently in the midst of a pandemic-induced shutdown. The July 1 date is part of a four-month calendar that has been developed by the NZTR board and is based on a belief that training may be able to resume in May, with trials starting in late June. At first, it would begin with a single meeting each week in each region, before aiming to build to wider venue use by late spring. Also being considered are incentives to get horses to the races, rather than trialling multiple times, as well as the removal of nomination and acceptance fees.

NZTR cuts costs with industry not operating

In addition to a planned return to racing, NZTR has highlighted the measures that it has undertaken to reduce costs while the industry is shut down. Payroll and contractor costs have been reduced by 20 per cent, the salaries of board members have been reduced by 100 per cent, while Saundry has taken a 25 per cent pay cut. There have also been moves to enhance the protocols and actions required when a return to racing and training is possible, ensuring that the path is as easy as possible once the lockdown concludes.

Wellwood reflects on stable success

With racing in New Zealand locked down, trainer Robert Wellwood is taking stock of the shortened season and what his stable has achieved in that period. Wellwood trains in partnership with Roger James and believes the duo is set for a strong showing once racing resumes. "We have certainly had a good season to date, probably highlighted by Two Illicit," Wellwood said. "Unfortunately, she wasn't able to win the New Zealand Derby but even the fact that we had three horses in the top six of the Derby was something to be pretty proud of. We have got a great team of staff and a good group of owners and it makes the job a lot easier. It was gutting to watch the races from Sydney last weekend, knowing that we had two or three horses primed and ready to go, but I think Covid-19 is bigger than racing and bigger than our stable."

INTERNATIONAL

Santa Anita Derby cancelled

The Santa Anita Derby (Gr 1, 9f), the premier three-year-old contest in California on the road to the Kentucky Derby (Gr 1, 10f), has been postponed as the racecourse abides by a Los Angeles County Health Department order closing the track. The Stronach Group, which owns Santa Anita, announced that the race would be rescheduled to later in the season, although administrators are attempting to gain immediate approval to restart racing at the historic track. The Santa Anita Derby postponement leaves the Arkansas Derby (Gr 1, 9f) at Oaklawn as the only race remaining on the Derby trail at this stage, with the race shifting to the first Saturday in May - the date which normally features the Kentucky Derby.

Doyle keeping fit for return

Britain's leading female jockey Hollie Doyle is keeping herself busy to make sure she is ready for the resumption of racing, whenever that might be. Doyle, 23, is riding out every day and will be primed for a return to action once the go ahead is received on the track. "There's not a lot we can do really. We've got to keep the horses going," Doyle said. "I'm just riding out every day and getting my exercise. At least we're all in the same position." Her partner Tom Marquand is in Australia during the Sydney autumn. "He's enjoying it down there. He's just a bit worried about getting home, but he should be all right," Doyle said. "He's just going to ride in the Sydney Cup and then come home."

MAGIC MILLIONS

BY TIM ROWE | @ANZ_NEWS

Magic Millions has moved to reassure clients about the Gold Coast National Weanling, Broodmare and Yearling Sale going ahead this season by pushing it back to July in the hope of being able to conduct a live auction.

The sales company, like rival Inglis who next week will hold its Australian Easter Yearling Sale via its digital platform, has been forced to make changes to its schedule due to the coronavirus pandemic which has heavily restricted the movement of people and shut down many business sectors.

Late yesterday, Magic Millions announced that the National sale had been pushed back by two months from its initial late May-June dates, with the broodmare and weanling sessions now tentatively slated for July 20 to 24, while three days, from July 28 to 30, has been set aside for the yearling catalogue.

Magic Millions managing director Barry Bowditch, in a video address, acknowledged the “unnerving times” brought on by Covid-19 and that the company had delayed the important National sale in a bid to ensure buyers could attend the Gold Coast complex.

“All of our team here at Magic Millions respects the fact that you, our clients, are concerned about sale changes and market adjustments,” Bowditch said.

“Just be assured that we are looking to adjust these to do the best things by you. We are here to serve you (and) to strive for the best possible outcome.

“We pride ourselves on our ability to innovate and to be able to hold exciting and unmissable live auctions.”

But Bowditch did not rule out holding the sale elsewhere or online if protocols limiting people movement remained in place.

“If we are unable to (hold a live auction at the Gold Coast), we have the technology to go online or even change location and have the sale elsewhere,” he said.

“It’s our obligation to you to hold the best auction we possibly can and provide you with the best opportunity to sell your horse.

“To assist you in planning, we have put together a tentative sales schedule ... but I must stress that government restrictions mean that this schedule needs to be flexible.”

Given the proximity to the foaling season, any mares with an early covering date will be sold in absentia while entries for the National sale have also been pushed back, with a new closing date of May 8.

Inglis also recently made changes to its 2020 sales schedule because of the impact caused by coronavirus, moving its Chairman's Sale for elite breeding stock to an online format on May 8 while the Australian Broodmare Session will also be held online two days later.

Round 2 of the Australian Easter Yearling Sale, the Australian Weanling Sale, Melbourne Gold Yearling Sale and Great Southern Sales have also been rescheduled to July.

Badgers Bloodstock brings 'Moneyball' big data to Easter

BY SCOTT BURTON

While several regular international visitors to the Warwick Farm complex have had to forego participation in this year's Inglis Australian Easter Yearling Sale, at least one agency with an impeccable pedigree have seized on the digital version of the auction as a real opportunity.

The father and son team of Grant and Tom Pritchard-Gordon will be burning the midnight oil from their Newmarket base, armed with inspection reports from local allies, their own experience and expertise, as well as what they hope will be a key edge in terms of their pre-sale research.

"We were planning on attending the sale and hoping to buy a number of yearlings for international and local buyers," said Tom Pritchard-Gordon.

"That went pear-shaped with coronavirus but we have done a lot of big data research into the sale, looking at the results of every single horse over the past 15 years and seeing if we could find some trends in that regard.

"At one stage we felt that, with us not being able to attend, we wouldn't be able to add much information for our clients. But with it now going digital, we have had time to get some feet on the ground in Australia, get all their notes on the conformation of the horses and then combine that with all the information that we've got ourselves.

"We're hopeful that, along with speaking to the vendors themselves, we've got enough information to be quite busy in the coming four or five days."

Grant and Tom Pritchard-Gordon

RACING POST

The Pritchard-Gordons work under the Badgers Bloodstock banner, one synonymous with success in the southern hemisphere thanks to their purchase as a yearling of Golden Slipper Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) heroine Miss Finland (Redoute's Choice).

Such a rich pedigree might lead the pair to let their name be the calling card for both potential and returning clients but the Badgers team have refused to rest on those well-furnished laurels.

Explaining their innovative use of what might be termed "Moneyball" data - the Michael Lewis book of the same name explored the stats revolution in baseball - Tom Pritchard-Gordon said: "It's very much an additional thing and something which, over the last couple of years, we've really focused on.

"We've seen the impact of big data in so many other sports and racing has so much of it available that, if you can get big enough numbers then you can find trends there that will surely help you out when it comes to looking at yearlings, mares, any aspect of bloodstock.

"It is something we've really focused on in the last two years and we are beginning to see some benefits of doing so.

"Having a decent sample size is important as is the ability to customise your research, using the likes of Arion, Wetherbys, all these sources you can work against and it gives you some kind of an angle."

Having put in hours of number crunching, their inability to attend the Easter sale could have spelled the end of the Badgers Bloodstock interest in next weekend's events but, with the online bidding system and the aid of plenty of strong coffee, they are ready to do battle for their chosen lots.

"We're in the process of whittling down the catalogue at present rather than [figuring out] the actual process of bidding online. We've never actually bought from Inglis online before but I'm confident it will be user-friendly."

Redvers, Gold to be missing from buying bench

While the Pritchard-Gordons have been able to wrangle in-country help ahead of the sale, the almost complete halt of long-distance air travel has led David Redvers to shelve his plans to buy this weekend.

And the Tweenhills Farm principal and Qatar Racing advisor is nervous about how things will go for Inglis in what is an unprecedented set-up for a major yearling sale.

"I would have gone and was due to fly today (Tuesday)," said Redvers.

"A yearling sale is a very difficult sale to hold as an online sale. I can see the merits of a ready-to-run sale online because you have so much more to go on, so much more information. With a yearling sale, so much of what you see as a professional buyer is down to close inspection.

"It's not something you can see on a video and that makes it very difficult with international buyers. Obviously there are some very good agents and trainers down there who will have done a lot of the on-farm looks already, and that will help people. I think it's a huge gamble and I shall be watching rather than partaking."

Redvers will be involved as a vendor and warns anyone expecting to steal a bargain that selling at any price was not an option.

He said: "We do have some yearlings that we are selling which, everyone of them, are proper, smart Easter sale yearlings and we're not going to be entering into a fire sale. We'll be putting sensible reserves on them. We'll be watching but I would be quite nervous about the concept"

Another familiar figure who will be missing from the virtual ring is Shadwell's Angus Gold, though his inability to get to Australia without first undergoing mandatory quarantine is not the sole reason.

"Sheikh Hamdan normally buys a few horses down there but David Hayes moving to Hong Kong is one factor," said Gold. "Secondly, we've suddenly got a lot more mares that have come on stream down there in the last few years and we've ended up with more homebred yearlings.

"So he intimated to me back in November or December that he probably wasn't going to buy yearlings in the southern hemisphere this year, and we didn't go to Magic Millions.

"I would normally have gone to Australia after Dubai to look at the homebreds and the stock we have there anyway and I was hoping to call into the sales and have a look at the stock and talk to him if there was something I thought would be good to have.

"It's a great shame and I feel incredibly sorry for all of those guys down there that work so hard to get their yearlings there, and for the sales company who are keeping it all on track.

"They've had lots of people looking with inspections on the farms as numerous as ever, if not more so. It's just a question of whether trainers and agents can persuade owners to buy horses at this time, when everything is so uncertain."

Analysis: After placings in three of her first four starts, the Matthew Smith-trained filly Rock My Wand broke through for her first success here, staging a most promising performance in the process. After being caught deep early on, she made a quick move to race outside the leader (Gundy Bridge). She got the upper hand on turning for home and then drew right away to score easily, relishing the heavy 9 track. The Chris Waller-trained colt Achiever battled on quite well to take second after being handy all the way in a sound effort on debut. [KB]
