Easter Yearling Sale hangs in the balance after new coronavirus restrictions announced

Government bans auction houses from operation leaving Inglis in limbo on the eve of their major sale

BY TIM ROWE | @ANZ_NEWS

Next month's Inglis Australian Easter Yearling Sale, traditionally the highest-averaging market of the year, was hanging by a thread last night after the federal government banned auction houses from operation.

Inglis had earlier in the day announced that it would bring forward its high-end yearling sale by two days in a desperate bid to ensure that the auction went ahead, but prime minister Scott Morrison's latest bid to slow the spread of the deadly Covid-19 leaves the Easter extravaganza in extreme doubt.

Following a national cabinet meeting last night, the prime minister ramped up restrictions imposed on Australians and their businesses, including the closure of "auction houses", to go with the shutdown of pubs, clubs, nightclubs, casinos and gyms which came into effect on Monday. Continued on page 2>>

Racing set to continue

GETTY IMAGES

After Australian prime minister Scott Morrison last night announced additional restrictions on a range of activities in the country in an attempt to halt the spread of coronavirus, racing looks set to continue for at least another day. Restrictions have been extended to include all social gatherings such as weddings, funerals and social sporting events, but there has been no announcement regarding the cancellation of racing as yet. Morning Briefing page 6 >>

The new stipulations, which also included a maximum of ten people being permitted to attend a funeral and just five at a wedding, are set to be signed off today and come into effect from midnight tonight.

The dramatic escalation of the government's fight against the coronavirus came after Inglis had confirmed the date change for the Easter sale as well as reaffirming plans to have buyers on site at Riverside Stables by invitation only.

Under the new plan, the Easter sale, comprising a 514-lot catalogue, was to be held on Sunday and Monday, April 5 and 6, but whether it can now proceed is questionable at best.

Inglis could attempt to argue it is not an auction house in terms of the type of business the government was intending to temporarily shut down due to the global health crisis. The company was unavailable for comment following last night's revelations.

The banning of auction houses also puts Inglis' The Chairman's Sale and Australian Weanling and Broodmare Sale in May at risk, while rival Magic Millions' Gold Coast National Bloodstock Sale, in May and June, is also in doubt.

Inglis had already been working to meet the strict protocols placed on it - including a 500-person limit for outdoor gatherings - to make sure the Easter sale could go ahead and announced the date change yesterday afternoon via its website.

"Inglis is aware of the challenges posed by the outbreak of Covid-19 and has engaged a biosecurity consultant to assist in management of the sale while Inglis representatives are in regular contact with a senior official in the NSW Department of Health," a statement read.

"Inglis will continue to make itself aware of developments in what is an evolving situation and will update our stakeholders in a timely manner as necessary."

Inglis also urged potential buyers to register if they wanted to be at the complex in the lead-up or during the auction.

"Only approved persons and their necessary associates will be registered to attend," it said.

Inglis's have gone through a very meticulous plan to keep people apart and to ensure that we meet all the government protocols and I think it can work well

"There will be no access by members of the general public and people are discouraged from looking to attend the sale complex without the necessary registration confirmation.

"Prospective buyers are encouraged to consider our online bidding facilities which have been in place for many years."

Arrowfield Stud, last year's leading Easter sale vendor, has 63 yearlings catalogued for the 2020 auction and principal John Messara, speaking to ANZ Bloodstock News prior to the prime minister's announcement, was "hopeful but I can't be confident of anything because things change every day" of the auction proceeding.

"Inglis's have gone through a very meticulous plan to keep people apart and to ensure that we meet all the government protocols and I think it can work well," Messara said.

"At the end of day, stables need to have horses and they need another crop of two-year-olds next year.

"People will buy horses, but they may not pay the prices they would have otherwise paid but hopefully there will be some chance to have a market there."

Last year's Easter sale turned over more than $123 million at an average of $353,511 but global financial markets have crashed in recent weeks due to the economic implications caused by Covid-19.

Messara was in no doubt that vendors would take a hit financially at the Easter sale if it went ahead, but believes investors who were prepared to look beyond the current downturn could be the ones to come out on top.

"I have probably got the best draft of horses that we've ever taken to Inglis, so it is a bit unfortunate for us that we're meeting this sort of market but I see it as an opportunity for long-term players," he said. Continued on page 4>

"They can come in there to buy horses that they may not have been willing to pay the market prices for a few months ago and now they will probably get them at a more sensible price and away they go.

"There will be winners and losers and the studs will be the losers and buyers will be winners, I'd say."

Given the impact of Covid-19 - New Zealand goes into lockdown tonight, forcing the racing industry to close for at least four weeks - it is understood that Inglis is also providing vendors with two payment and commission structure options to consider as the Easter sale figures will almost certainly take a significant downturn.

The first option is for payment terms to vendors remaining at the standard 42 days, or the second one being that the sales commission is reduced by 1.5 per cent with a zero pass-in rate but payment terms of 150 days.

Inglis had already told vendors last week that it would reduce its pass-in commission to 1.5 per cent for those sticking with a 42-day payment option.

Privately, some vendors are pessimistic about the appetite of buyers to overextend themselves at next month's sale and have even made recommendations to some clients that holding onto their stock to race, rather than putting them through the ring, was an alternative that needed to be considered.

Inglis sales ring

INGLIS

One potential silver lining, despite an almost certain decrease to the depth of the buying bench that normally participates at the Easter sale, is the plummeting Australian dollar which could incentivise internationals to purchase new stock even if they are not able to inspect the horses personally due to the travel ban.

Last night, the Australian dollar was trading at 58.81 US cents, down 13 cents on the same time last year.

Earlier this week, Milburn Creek's John Muir told ANZ Bloodstock News: "With the Australian dollar under 60 cents, I'd like to be an overseas buyer looking to buy a nice colt or filly, I tell you."

AUSTRALIA

Aspect Ratio takes Vinery path to Oaks

Stepping up beyond 1600 metres for the first time will give Aspect Ratio (Declaration of War) a chance of gaining black type in Saturday's Vinery Stud Stakes (Gr 1, 2000m) at Rosehill, but trainer John Sargent is confident the filly will be a genuine contender in the Australian Oaks (Gr 1, 2400m). Aspect Ratio tackles standout fillies Funstar (Adelaide) and Probabeel (Savabeel) in the Vinery, having finished fourth behind them in the Phar Lap Stakes (Gr 2, 1500m) last start. "Tim Clark galloped her this morning and was happy with her so she'll go that way and run in the Vinery," Sargent said. "It sets her up for the Oaks and that's her main ambition for this preparation. She's by Declaration Of War, the same sire as the Melbourne Cup winner (Vow and Declare) and once she gets over 2400 metres she'll be in her element."

Interstate option for Rainbow Thief

The Doncaster Prelude (Gr 3, 1500m) looks the likely target for Rainbow Thief (Rock 'n' Pop) instead of the Golden Mile (Listed, 1600m) at Bendigo with the four-year-old in a better position to gain a run in NSW than in Victoria. Rainbow Thief is 47th in the elimination order for the Golden Mile with 51 nominations for the provincial feature, while he sits 20th in the order for the Doncaster Prelude, with a field of 15 to run. "We thought he would be further down the order for the Doncaster Prelude until we realised on Tuesday morning that horses that hold an entry for the Doncaster Mile get preference and that's why we're up the order further," trainer Mike Moroney told Racing.

com. "He'd have to win the Prelude to make sure he'd run in the Doncaster but I'm a bit buoyed by the fact they're going to get a bit of rain up there in Sydney."

Sydney preference for Princess Jenni

Victorian trainer David Brideoake remains hopeful he can get Group 1-winning mare Princess Jenni (High Chaparral) to Sydney despite new protocols regarding the movement of participants due to the coronavirus pandemic. Brideoake has the four-year-old nominated for Saturday's Emancipation Stakes (Gr 2, 1500m) at Rosehill as well as the Golden Mile at Bendigo. "She raced at The Valley last Friday night and she pulled fairly hard and she just didn't really have much go her way," Brideoake said. "So we were quite keen to take an option of a week back-up and then the idea is to stay up in Sydney for a couple of weeks if, fingers crossed, we're still rolling and run her in the Group 1 mares' race (Coolmore Legacy Stakes). As long as everything still goes as we expect and she can still travel, then that's the plan."

Pike's Sydney team to join local trainers

An eventful few hours for New Zealand trainer Tony Pike yesterday saw him decide to spell his Australian-based horses, only to later announce that he would send all three members of his team to local trainers to continue their campaigns. Pike aborted his Sydney raid, with his two staff members in Sydney, Mark Hills and Chris McNab, both on flights back to New Zealand yesterday afternoon. The Bostonian (Jimmy Choux) joins John O'Shea and heads for the All-Aged Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m), Sherwood Forest (Fastnet Rock) will continue his Australian Derby (Gr 1, 2400m) build-up with Bjorn Baker and Not An Option (Not A Single Doubt) steps out in Sydney for the first time on Saturday in The Schweppervescence (Gr 3, 1400m), now in the care of Richard and Michael Freedman.

McDonald to ride Castelveccchio

Castelveccchio

SPORTPIX

New rules which will prevent Victorian jockeys from riding in NSW for the rest of the autumn have already forced a scramble for riders, with James McDonald booked to ride Castelveccchio (Dundeel) in the Australian Derby. Craig Williams was widely lauded for his winning ride on Castelveccchio in last weekend's Rosehill Guineas (Gr 1, 2000m), but with jockeys based outside NSW as at 5pm local time on Monday unable to ride in NSW indefinitely, the Victorian-based Williams will sit out the remainder of the Sydney autumn. Instead, McDonald will take his first ride on the three-year-old. The Richard Litt-trained Castelveccchio, now half-owned by Arrowfield Stud, may progress to the Queen Elizabeth Stakes (Gr 1, 2000m) after he contests the Derby. His sire won both the Derby and the Queen Elizabeth as It's A Dundeel (High Chaparral).

Brandenburg and Boss chasing Doncaster

Seven-time Doncaster Mile (Gr 1, 1600m) winner Glen Boss has locked down the ride on Hobartville Stakes (Gr 2, 1400m) winner Brandenburg (Burgundy) as he seeks to build on his unprecedented record in Sydney's top mile contest. Boss rode Brandenburg when he finished fourth in the George Ryder Stakes (Gr 1, 1500m) last weekend and trainer John Sargent confirmed that the rider would stick with his colt for the Doncaster. "Glen Boss has elected to ride him over a few others, so that's a glowing report," Sargent said. "He goes in with a very light weight. They've raised the weights one kilogram so he drops six kilograms from the George Ryder to 50 kilograms and he'll be spot-on for that race. Glen is going to come and gallop him next Tuesday."

Miss Leonidas retired

Days after one of her best efforts when narrowly beaten in The Galaxy (Gr 1, 1100m), Miss Leonidas (I Am Invincible) has been retired. Trainer Shaun Dwyer confirmed that Miss Leonidas, a two-time Group 1 runner-up from two attempts at the highest level, would retire to the breeding barn and would be served by Exceed And Excel (Daneshill). Miss Leonidas retires as a winner of five of her 19 starts, including the Caulfield Sprint (Gr 2, 1000m), with prize-money earnings of more than $825,000.

NSW jockeys split into regions

Interstate jockeys will be locked out of NSW and local riders divided into three regions under enhanced biosecurity measures. The state's jockey pool will be split into three regions - metropolitan, North (Gosford, Wyong, Newcastle, the Hunter & North West, Mid North Coast and Northern Rivers) and South West (Kembla Grange, Hawkesbury, Southern Districts, South East, Central District and Western). NSW jockeys were required to select a region by yesterday and cannot accept rides in another area from Friday as authorities strive to keep racing going during the Covid-19 pandemic while all other sports have closed down. Jockeys selecting the metropolitan area can also only ride trackwork at a metropolitan track on Tuesday and official barrier trials in the city, while riders in other regions can continue regular trackwork but can only ride in races or trials in their selected regions.

Victoria further restricts interstate visitors to race meetings

Racing Victoria yesterday released additional measures for visitors to licensed premises in an attempt to halt the spread of Covid-19. Effective from 6pm (AEST) on Thursday, jockeys, trainers and their staff, as well as raceday officials and club staff, will be prevented from visiting RV licensed premises for a period of 14 days if they have travelled interstate. Any licensed individual who has travelled from outside Victoria after that deadline is required to self-isolate for 14 days before visiting RV premises. Jockeys competing in Victoria who have travelled to/from the state since March 17 via a commercial flight also need to complete 14 days self-isolation.

Byrne aggravates leg injury

Jim Byrne faces another stint on the sidelines after aggravating the leg injury he sustained in a fall at Doomben in December. Byrne only resumed race riding last week having had a pin inserted in his left leg, but the jockey has revealed he was forced to visit his doctor after the leg swelled up badly on Sunday morning, the day after he rode at Eagle Farm. "It is obviously a great pity. I have been swimming two kilometres a day and I rode trackwork for three weeks before resuming race riding," Byrne said. "I was sure I was right to come back and while it was a bit sore after riding I thought I would be fine. But it really blew up on Sunday and it looks like it is something to do with the screw they inserted."

Harness racing in two states shut down

Harness racing in NSW and Victoria was put on hold yesterday as the industry awaited the results of coronavirus tests on a person who attended last Thursday's race meeting at Penrith. Harness Racing NSW (HRNSW) said it was monitoring the health of that person after learning they had been in contact with someone who had tested positive for Covid-19. Anyone who had direct contact with the person at last Thursday's race meeting has been notified. HRNSW said meetings scheduled until March 26 have been abandoned; after Thursday, fields will be drawn in the hope harness racing can resume. Harness Racing Victoria (HRV) called off last night's Bendigo meeting as a precaution as they investigated whether any of its participants had contact with those in NSW.

NEW ZEALAND

Exercise imperative to horse welfare: Pike

Tony Pike is adamant that training tracks need to remain open throughout the Covid-19 alert lockdown on animal welfare grounds. The trainer, who is also the President of the New Zealand Trainers' Association, usually has around 80 horses in work and is keen to see tracks remain open to keep horses ticking over, albeit on a reduced scale. "I have been working really closely with New Zealand Thoroughbred Racing and also have a couple of vets on board as well, just from an animal welfare point of view," Pike said. "We are waiting for clarification as to whether we can carry on training, which will hopefully come through tonight (Tuesday). We hope to keep the training tracks open on some sort of scale to get some exercise into the horses. From a health and animal welfare point of view it is pretty hard having a fit racehorse standing in the box 24 hours a day, without any form of significant exercise."

Allpress extends lead

Lisa Allpress extended her lead in the New Zealand Jockeys' Premiership at Tauherenikau on Sunday when she rode a double but she heads into the temporary close down of racing in New Zealand fully aware the potential impact of the Covid-19 epidemic is far more important. "It's a difficult time for a lot of people," she said. "I am happy with the way I have been riding. I have felt really relaxed out there as I am really enjoying what I have been doing. The premiership, if that happens this year that would be fantastic, but I think we have got a lot more things to worry about than winning premiership."

Dancing Fighter to shoot for hat-trick

Promising galloper Dancing Fighter (Zoustar) returns at Happy Valley tonight with top-weight, a wide draw and a three-month absence to overcome if he is to complete a hat-trick of wins. Dancing Fighter, who runs in the colours of Hong Kong superstar Aaron Kwok, has not finished outside the top two from six starts and trainer Caspar Fownes is taking a wary view of the circumstances his four-year-old finds himself in for the Class 3 Kong Sin Wan Handicap (1200m). "If he'd drawn a nice gate I'd have been quite confident because he seems to be going to the next level but 133 pounds and gate nine, fresh up from a break, it could be tough," Fownes acknowledged. "We never seem to have much luck with the draw with this horse. Now he's at the top of the weights and it's going to be even harder."

INTERNATIONAL

35 for Raven's Pass

Darley stallion Raven's Pass (Elusive Quality) produced his 35th individual stakes winner at Naas on Monday when Lemista (3 f ex Shortmile Lady by Arcano) took the first Group race of the Irish flat season, the Park Express Stakes (Gr 3, 1m). The Ger Lyons-trained filly, a maiden winner as a two-year-old, stuck on gamely to hold off the classy Hamariyna (Sea The Moon) by three-quarters of a length, with the winner's stablemate Even So (Camelot) another neck back in third. Raven's Pass stands at Kildangan Stud in Ireland for a fee of €10,000 ($18,350) (inc GST).

86 for Holy Roman Emperor

Coolmore's durable stallion Holy Roman Emperor (Danehill) sired his 86th individual stakes winner on Monday when Numerian (4 g ex Delicate Charm by High Chaparral) took the Devoy Stakes (Listed, 1m 2f) at Naas. The Joseph O'Brien-trained Numerian had twice been placed in stakes races as a three-year-old, but a gelding operation has brought out his best and he looks bound for Group races. He defeated last season's Epsom Derby (Gr 1, 1m 4f) favourite Sir Dragonet (Camelot) by almost three lengths, with Halimi (Teofilo) back in third. Holy Roman Emperor stands for €15,000 ($27,525) (inc GST) at Coolmore's Castlehyde Stud.

Atlantic Jewel's son wins in Ireland

Russian Emperor (Galileo), the third foal out of multiple Group 1 winner Atlantic Jewel (Fastnet Rock), stamped himself as a potential Classic contender with a last-stride win at Naas on Monday. The Aidan O'Brien-trained Russian Emperor, who caught the eye on debut at the Curragh in July, flashed home to win the mile maiden by a short head over the Jessica Harrington-trained Lobo Rojo (Lope De Vega). Rider Seamie Heffernan, who won last year's Epsom Derby on Anthony Van Dyck (Galileo), was full of praise for Russian Emperor. "He had a lovely run last year. He's a fine, big colt," Heffernan said. "When he switched out and the penny dropped he won well. Aidan's could improve an awful lot, not through fitness, but just because they hibernate through the winter. He's a Group horse and if he gets a mile and a half he's top notch."

Woodbine closed until further notice

Woodbine Entertainment, owners of Woodbine racecourse, announced yesterday it is postponing the start of the 2020 season until further notice due to the coronavirus outbreak. The decision was taken after the government of Ontario mandated that all non-essential businesses closed by 11.59pm yesterday. The government's latest strategy to combat the threat of the coronavirus means regular training will not be permitted at the course with only essential care for horses based at the track. Woodbine will determine a new start date for the campaign once training operations are allowed to resume at the track.

The virus is not a joke. The virus does not just infect old people. The virus is not like the flu. Most of the youth around the world is missing the point. The virus will make you want to die if it doesn't kill you first.

On Monday (3/18) my wife said to me in the middle of the night, "What's wrong with you. You're gasping for air." My response was, "I think I have a chest cold developing." It felt like there was dry phlegm stuck in my chest.

On Tuesday a.m. I could not get out of bed. She suggested I leave the apartment, and head to a vacant 1-bedroom apartment my grandma (who is in Florida) has in the same NYC building. We have a 7-week-old baby, and the last thing I wanted to do was infect her and my wife. I took my pillow and left. Eight days later, I'm still here.

Symptoms and Actions:

Tuesday - Woke up with aches and pains all over. Very much like if you have a bad cold or the flu. A deep chest cough started. Coming from my lungs, not phlegm in your throat. When you cough nothing happens but feeling pain. No temperature immediately (mine was 97.2). Hard to want to do anything. I did not have any appetite or sense of smell. In bed Tuesday night I took my temp again. 99.6. The fever had started.

Wednesday - Woke up with a 100.4 temp. News spreading that NYC is the #1 hot spot in America (1/3 of the cases in the country). I had been careful since returning from Saudi, so figured there is no way I have Covid-19. I call my PCP and he agreed to see me. I drove myself, wait in the car, they bring me out a mask and gloves, and he empties the office. Flu test, strep test, stool culture, blood panel. Everything "normal" was negative. The only bad sign was my SPO2 (oxygen) level was 91%. Normal is 95%-100%. He said, you can try to call the CDC and get tested but you have the Covid-19 virus. With the NYC hospitals overrun, and the only testing being done was for medical professionals, he thought I should head home, and come back on Friday to make sure my chest X-ray was clear.

Wednesday night - I sat in bed, hacking cough, struggling for a normal breath. Did not sleep for even one hour. Thursday - Temp came down to 99.6. Managing temp and pain with Tylenol. Gastrointestinal issues start. I couldn't keep anything inside. I started modicum to help with that. Aches and pains pretty much gone. Shortness of breath getting worse, way worse. Like you're suffocating to death. Cough getting worse, and more painful. Thursday night you start to think it's better off to be dead.

Friday - Head back to the Dr. Chest X-ray is still clean of pneumonia. He tells me my body is fighting well. But days 5-7 are when people turn for the worst, potentially requiring supplemental oxygen and hospitalization or can be in the right direction. He suggested I buy a pulse oximeter, to measure my oxygen at home. That will help me see if my lungs are severely compromised. I get the oximeter, which reads 92%-93%. Gives me some comfort I can see my levels at home. I finally get 4 hours of sleep, before a terrible headache comes on. Take Tylenol to relieve the pain.

Saturday - Temperature is gone. Stomach issues cleared up. Shortness of breath was the same, awful. Cough still
