Magic Millions to take on Inglis in battle for online market share

Cornerstone Stud backs inaugural digital auction with large draft of stock

Magic Millions Barrier Draw

MAGIC MILLIONS

BY TIM ROWE | @ANZ_NEWS

Magic Millions has launched an internet auction platform and will go head-to-head with the rival Inglis Digital business in a bid to capture a share of the rapidly growing and lucrative online thoroughbred trading market.

South Australian farm Cornerstone Stud has embraced the Magic Millions Online service with an unreserved 66-lot draft of stakes-winning and producing broodmares and weanlings to help the Gold Coast-based auction house enter a new digital phase.

McEvoy Mitchell Racing will also offer three race fillies through the inaugural auction, including the stakes-winning two-year-old Westport (Not A Single Doubt).

In confirming the news yesterday, Magic Millions managing director Barry Bowditch said the company's online division had come to fruition after much thought and investment over an extended period of time. page 2>>

"It is something that we've been looking at for quite some time and it has worked out that when Cornerstone was on the table we thought, 'why not work towards that as our goal by working with Sam (Hayes) and pulling that together as our feature sale and our first sale?'" Bowditch said.

"Magic Millions Online will give clients great faith once they see how the process works. Hopefully, we can represent many vendors in online sales going forward."

Inglis, and to a lesser extent New Zealand Bloodstock's Gavelhouse.com and independent business Bloodstockauction.com, has dominated the online thoroughbred selling space with the Inglis Digital brand growing significantly in turnover month on month.

A 564-lot Inglis Digital sale, the biggest offering in the business's short history, is currently underway.

Bowditch, who first revealed publicly the company's desire to offer an online service nearly 12 months ago, has watched on as Inglis continued to grow its digital platform but he has yet to commit to a calendar of sales using the platform.

"We will learn a lot from having this sale and what works best for us and how we should do it," he said.

"As soon as we've got through that, we will look to have another sale, but we'll get a bit of clarity out of this sale and take it from there.

"During these times of Covid-19, it's important to give our clients as many different options as possible."

Hayes, Cornerstone Stud's principal, revealed he was contemplating holding an on-farm auction at the Barossa Valley property but the onset of coronavirus led to a partnership with Magic Millions.

"As 2020 progressed we then looked at trying to do that online and Magics expressed interest in partnering with us to launch their platform at the same time. That is how it came about," Hayes said.

"What was exciting for us was to effectively be a bit of a standalone sale and ... it made it very easy to work with Adrian Hancock.

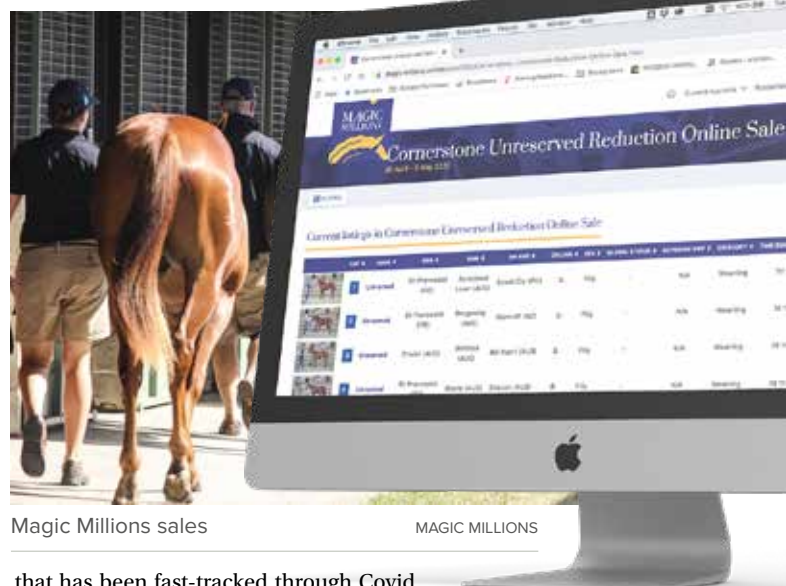

"He is based in Adelaide and he was able to come up and look at all the stock and make comments for potential buyers who want a second and third opinion on horses, so to partner with our own local sales company made sense."

Cornerstone Stud has used online platforms in the past to sell stock and Hayes predicted that the number of vendors and buyers using the digital avenue would only continue to grow.

"Inglis has been very successful and got the jump of the two major sales companies, they were the first to market, so I think it makes sense for Magics to enter the market," he said.

"It is a trend not just in our industry, but in all industries, and that has been fast-tracked through Covid with more business being done from home and online than ever before.

"I can only see that trend continuing, so I think it's smart for Magics to be operating in that space."

Hayes said Cornerstone had a history of selling quality weanlings - graduates who have gone on to win at Group 1, 2 and 3 level - and believes buyers have the opportunity to strike in a market heavily impacted by coronavirus.

"Obviously all that changed, but we still feel that it is the right time as we were going to sell at some point anyway and there's no guarantee that the market will be stronger in July and August."

Five for Night Of Thunder

Night Of Thunder

DARLEY

Former Darley shuttler Night Of Thunder (Dubawi) yesterday sired his fifth individual Australian-bred first crop winner when Irish Thunder (2 g ex Tiger's Girl by Tiger Hill) won the Kennards Hire Taree Maiden handicap (1000m) at Taree on debut. Trained by Kris Lees, Irish Thunder had finished runner-up in two barrier trials at Newcastle earlier this month before making the perfect start to his race career, scoring by one and a quarter lengths. He defeated Dr Copper (Sizzling) and The Spell (Rubick) in the $20,000 maiden. Night Of Thunder shuttled to Darley's Northwood Park in Victoria for just one season, covering 86 mares in 2016. From that crop, Group 3 winner A Beautiful Night and Listed winner River Night have emerged among his five winners. Darley will this year have another son of Dubawi (Dubai Millennium), champion European two-year-old Too Darn Hot, shuttling to Australia at an introductory fee of $44,000 (inc GST).

Wide draw for Sunlight

Three time Group 1 winner Sunlight (Zoustar) has drawn barrier 16 for Saturday's TAB Classic (registered as Robert Sangster Stakes) (Gr 1, 1200m) in the 16 runner field, but will come in two places if the emergencies don't get a run. Galaxy Handicap (Gr 1, 1100m) winner I Am Excited (Snitzel) has drawn barrier five while last year's Blue Diamond Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) winner Lyre (Lonhro) has drawn 12.

Weight loss no issue for Holland

Victorian jockey Dean Holland, who is partnering tough two-year-old Away Game (Snitzel) in Saturday's TAB Classic, is confident he will be able to lose the remaining two kilograms to ride the filly at 47 kilograms. Holland said he was 49 kilograms yesterday. "I've had plenty of time to watch all of her replays, she's a tough little filly, she's travelled everywhere and normally when she's travelled, she's won," Holland said. "She gets in 9.5 kilograms lighter than Sunlight, she's a tough filly, I wouldn't be here if I didn't think we couldn't win." The Ciaran Maher and David Eustace-trained Away Game has already raced in three states, winning four times from seven starts and earning $2.72 million in prize-money.

Affair To Remember gains Oaks start

The progressive Dan O'Sullivan-trained Affair To Remember (Toronado) has gained a start in the Australasian Oaks (Gr 1, 2000m) at Morphettville after the filly looked in danger of missing out on a run in the feature race. Drawing barrier five with John Allen taking the ride, Affair To Remember is part-owned by South Australian breeder David Peacock who O'Sullivan has a long association with. After O'Sullivan's move to Ballarat, Peacock transferred his horses firstly to Adelaide trainer Richard Jolly and then to Phillip Stokes. "But a few are coming back our way now because David's been breeding a few VOBIS horses, so it's working out well," O'Sullivan said. "I've only got a couple for him at the moment but it's exciting to have a good chance for David in the Oaks. I think she's the right filly to do it and she's going well enough."

Street Boss filly defies inexperience

Street Boss

DARLEY

With the prospect of a Group 1 victory, David Peacock enjoyed a nice entree at Sale yesterday, with another homebred, the two-year-old filly Highly Discreet (Street Boss), winning her first start in an age-restricted maiden (1112m). The Phillip Stokes-trained Highly Discreet, who is a daughter of Peacock's Listed-winning mare Very Discreet (Exceed And Excel) and a half-sister to the South African Group 1-placed Naafer (Lonhro), scored by a nose over Lady With Charm (Charm Spirit) and Night Of Delight (Night Of Thunder). "She's a sharp filly and though she did a lot wrong, she has a lot of upside," Stokes told Racing.com. "With the restrictions, we haven't been able to get a trial into her and she has just had a few jump outs. We thought only greenness would beat her today and it nearly did. I might give her one more run and put her out as she will keep improving."

Take two for Bandersnatch

Bandersnatch

SPORTPIX

After sustaining a cut to his leg and being scratched at the barriers before the Hawkesbury Guineas (Gr 3, 1600m) on Saturday, Gerald Ryan's Bandersnatch (Casino Prince) is likely to lineup in a 1400-metre Benchmark 88 on the Kensington track at Randwick this weekend. "Where I was standing looking towards the mounting yard I couldn't see if he did it there," Ryan said. "It was really minor, like a paper cut, but there was an awful lot of blood. He can sometimes get worked up. He is a bit of an airhead. He worked on Sunday and Monday and galloped this morning so he is ready to go on Saturday." All going well, the gelding will be given the chance at another rich race, the $200,000 Scone Guineas (RL, 1400m) on May 16.

Andrews seeks rare city win

Gareth Andrews will have Spirit Of Aquada (Bel Esprit) resume in a Benchmark 78 at Sandown today, but with the backmarker drawing the inside barrier, the Pakenham trainer is tempted to scratch him. "He's drawn one, he likes to get back and he's in the last race - I dare say the track will be pretty mucky by that time and he doesn't tend to have too much luck when he draws close to the fence," Andrews told Racing.com. "I may decide to scratch him but there's not many other options available so we may need to run." However, Andrew believes the five-year-old is good enough to land a Saturday city win later in the winter. "If he stays sound and we can get consistent racing into him, there's no reason why he couldn't win a Saturday city race through winter no problem, because his best is pretty good," he said.

Thunder Mania on J J Atkins path

John Symons and Sheila Laxon's smart juvenile Thunder Mania (Snitzel) will begin his bid for the J J Atkins (Gr 1, 1400m) in the QTIS Two-Year-Old Handicap (1200m) at the Sunshine Coast today. However, Symons will reassess the colt's lead up program to the J J Atkins due to it being reduced from its traditional 1600-metre distance to 1400 metres this year. "I would have preferred the J J Atkins to have stayed at 1600 metres but 1400 metres will still be okay for him" he said. "We'll see how he goes tomorrow then we'll have a look at what is the best path for him to the Atkins. The Champagne Stakes was marked down for him in his original winter carnival program but it might come up a bit quick in the revised carnival program."

Macdonald silencing Dalasan doubters

Leon Macdonald is looking forward to the South Australian Derby (Gr 1, 2500m) for his talented colt Dalasan (Dalakhani). Although he won the Chairman's Stakes (Gr 3, 2035m) last Saturday by more than a length, many have questioned whether he will stay the 2500-metre distance. "It's funny how people look at things sometimes, all the talk going into the race was about Warning, we pulled away from him after the 600-metre mark and people still question his performance," Macdonald told Racing.com. "I've learnt you can never be 100 percent confident until you've seen them over the trip, but I think he can do it and if he does, he'll win the Derby."

Tuscan Queen suffers tendon injury

The racing career of the Bob Peters-owned WA Oaks (Gr 3, 2400m) and WATC Derby (Gr 1, 2400m) winner Tuscan Queen (Fastnet Rock) hangs in the balance after she suffered a severe tendon injury. "We believe she suffered the injury in the WA Derby," Peters told The Races WA. "We initially tried to treat it with ice and anti-inflammatory medication, but she was not responding to that treatment. Because of that we opted for surgery to have a better look and it was then that they discovered the seriousness of the injury." The Grant and Alana Williams-trained filly was bought by Belmont Bloodstock's Damon Gabbedy on behalf of Peters at the 2018 Inglis Australian Easter Yearling Sale from the Coolmore draft. Gabbedy also purchased Tuscan Queen's half-sister by American Pharoah (Pioneerof The Nile) for $460,000 at this year's Easter sale from the Lime Country Thoroughbreds draft.

So You Think colt wins first start

The Gerald Ryan-trained Peltzer (So You Think) made the perfect start to his career over 1000 metres when winning a maiden at Kembla Grange. A $260,000 Magic Millions Gold Coast Yearling Sale purchase for Gerald Ryan Racing and David Raphael, he was offered by Mill Park, who had a good weekend through producing a trio of stakes winners in Dalasan (Dalakhani), Dawn Passage (Dawn Approach) and Ecumenical (Zebedee). Peltzer is the first winner out of Miss Otto (Elusive Quality), a half-sister to Group 2-placed Miss With Attitude (Galileo). Miss Otto's half-sister Oui Si Attitude (Bianconi) has produced a stakes winning three-quarter sister to Peltzer in So We Are (So You Think). Mill Park sold this year's yearling by Street Boss (Street Cry) out of Miss Otto for $75,000 to Kennewell Racing/Group 1 Bloodstock. She produced another filly by So You Think (High Chaparral) this year and is back in foal to him.

Trench Warfare off to promising start

Ballarat trainer Matt Cumani believes connections' patience with New Zealand-bred three-old Trench Warfare (Pentire) will be further rewarded. The colt, who is part-owned by OTI Racing, Cumani and stable clients, came from near last to score over 1312 metres at Geelong on Sunday when having his first start. The Rich Hill Stud-bred colt made NZ$220,000 at the 2018 New Zealand Bloodstock Karaka Yearling Sale, the highest-priced lot by the late stallion sold at auction that year. "We bought the horse in New Zealand, my father (Luca) and I, and Phill Cataldo," Cumani said. "He was a beautiful horse at the sales and was the most fantastic walker. I thought he might grow up a little bit, lengthen out and become a bit more scopey looking and match his walk. He hasn't at all, but still has a fantastic walk. It looks like it has fed through to his gallop and he is quite athletic." Cumani added: "He has got to go a long way from an average maiden at Geelong to spring racing, but he is the sort of horse that will hopefully get there."

Tassie racing's immediate future on the line

The restart of racing in Tasmania is subject to an approval by Dr Mark Veitch, Tasmania's Director of Public Health. Dr Veitch will either approve or reject a return to racing proposal which has already gained the support of Tasmanian Premier Peter Gutwein, who has referred the document, which splits Tasmania in two zones, to Dr Veitch. If Dr Veitch gives the go ahead for racing to resume, a gradual return would begin on May 16-17. ATA Chief Executive, Andrew Nicholl, noted that it was encouraging the Premier had accepted the proposal. Nicholl said the procedures will include protocols such as "social distancing, gloves on, temperature checking, all the same stuff as we're doing in Melbourne." Jockeys based in the North West would not be supported by the proposal as that part of the state is under lockdown, as it has been the epicentre of the outbreak in Tasmania. The plan also includes horses from the north who would be sent to race in the south by transport truck, then received by a nominated trainer and prepared for racing by that nominated trainer. The horses would then be returned to the registered trainer.

'Melham hearing as soon as possible'

Racing Victoria will ask for the hearing into Ben Melham's alleged betting activity to be held at the earliest possible date. Melham was issued with seven charges by stewards on Monday relating to betting on thoroughbred races between March and September last year and for giving false or misleading evidence to stewards. RV's head of integrity, Jamie Stier, was unsure when Melham's hearing in front of the Victorian Racing Tribunal would be scheduled although inquiries are continuing during the coronavirus pandemic. "It is worth noting the tribunal has been continuing to hear matters either through video hearings or over the telephone during the recent times, so it's not as though we're at a standstill with the tribunal," Stier told RSN927. "We'll be asking that the matter be brought to hearing at the earliest possible stage they're able to do so." Stier confirmed Melham was allowed to continue to ride pending the outcome of the inquiry.

Denistoun Park sold

Victorian racehorse owners Barb and Barry Saunders have purchased Mornington Peninsula private thoroughbred training property Denistoun Park. Resident trainer Jason Warren, who has owned and been based at the facility since 2005, will maintain his stable of horses at the complex under the deal. Denistoun Park is a 70-acre property with 52 boxes, a 1400-metre grass track and a 1750-metre sand track and other training aids. Barbara Saunders, a former Racing Victoria director, has been a long-time owner of racehorses and was rapt to get the deal done. "This is such a beautiful property, the facilities are amazing and it's great to now be a part of it and a part of its future," Saunders told Racing.com. "We have a working party which Jason is very much a part of as our anchor tenant and we're planning quite a few little upgrades. We want to try to expand the facility to take on more horses."

Noble oversees Lindsays' young stock

Lance Noble

CAMBRIDGE STUD

Karaka trainer Lance Noble has welcomed the next batch of well-bred yearling to his yard this week. Noble, who runs the private training operation of Cambridge Stud principals Brendan and Jo Lindsay, said that he is often quiet during the winter months and will use that time as an opportunity to gauge his youngstock. "Most of our racehorses won't come back into work again until the middle of May and we will stagger them in from there," Noble said. With mostly fillies in his year, Noble assesses their credentials at his yard in batches of six. "We just get them used to the stable environment and routine," he said. "Some on their pedigree and type will be potentially earlier than others. As you are doing it, you take notes on which ones you earmark as being a bit more professional and forward than the others."

Test Airfreight flight goes to plan

New Zealand Bloodstock's air freight division has successfully undertaken a test flight from Auckland to Sydney with a small group of horses. With new regulations and plans in place for grooms, NZB says it can confidently begin to work on limited flights for the backlog of horses requiring Trans-Tasman travel. The test flight was conducted with all grooms and travelling staff in full personal protective equipment, including overalls, masks and gloves, with loading and unloading completed by a separate bubble of handlers to avoid any potential spread of the Covid-19 virus. "We were rapt with the result of the test flight," NZB airfreight manager Greg Northcott said. "Our grooms are probably used to quarantine because we have quarantine flights. It shows the professionalism of the industry and the people we have got. All of the grooms had to have negative Covid-19 tests before they were allowed on the plane and when they come back to New Zealand they have to remain in their bubble."

ASIA

Moore confirms Sydney move

Champion Hong Kong trainer John Moore yesterday confirmed plans to return to Australia and enter into a partnership with his Sydney-based brother Gary. Moore, 70, is a seven-time leading trainer in Hong Kong and has applied for boxes at Rosehill. The Moore brothers are sons of inaugural Australian Racing Hall Of Fame inductee George Moore, one of Australia's greatest jockeys. The Hong Kong racing season ends in July and Moore hopes he can return to Australia soon after. "It is a new chapter and it is going to be hard, but I have Gary already in place back there and I can slowly blend into the racing scene. I can start to set things up the way I am hoping they can be," Moore told RSN927. "All of sudden being back in Sydney and no doubt having horses all over Australia to race it will be a different ball-game, but I have done what I needed to do up here and I look forward to the challenge."

Mr Stunning bows out as a winner

After his Chairman's Sprint Prize (Gr 1, 1200m) triumph on Sunday, seven-year-old triple Group 1 winner Mr Stunning (Exceed And Excel) has been retired. Trainer Frankie Lor confirmed the news to the South China Morning Post on Monday. "The horse will retire and then maybe the owner will send the horse back to Australia to enjoy his life," he said. "Yesterday was his last race so we are very happy he could win and retire on top." Mr Stunning was purchased at the 2014 New Zealand Bloodstock Premier Yearling Sale by Magus Equine for $250,000 from the Lyndhurst Farm, who secured the colt as a weanling for $110,000 at the Inglis Great Southern Weanling Sale. He retires a winner of 12 starts, six at Group level, and 11 placings from 30 starts, having earned a total of HK$60,843,100 in prize-money.

Flash Famous shooting for five straight

Frankie Lor heads into tonight's Happy Valley meeting with course specialist Flash Famous (Ilovethiscity) looking to become the first horse this season to win five races at the city circuit, when he contests section one of the Class 3 Fortress Hill Handicap (1650m). The Australian-bred was a two-time winner pre-import in Australia but from 23 runs across his first two Hong Kong seasons he could only manage one win. This season he's been a revelation though, and sits on four wins from seven runs, all over 1650 metres under the lights, and Joao Moreira credits the upturn to Lor. "Frankie has turned Flash Famous's form around, he has improved, for sure, and there's no doubt that he's capable of winning more races. I'm confident about him giving me another one in the Class he's in at the moment," he said.

INTERNATIONAL

HRI: Irish Guineas could be moved

Horse Racing Ireland chief executive Brian Kavanagh fears an extension of the Irish government's Covid-19 lockdown might lead to a rescheduling of the first two Classics of the Flat season next month, but reiterated Irish racing remains "racing ready" for a resumption of action when the industry gets the green light to proceed. A report in Monday's Irish Independent stated the government lockdown, due to end on May 4, may not be lifted at all, or only eased slightly, from next week. When asked whether an extension to the lockdown could lead to doubt over the Irish 2,000 (Gr 1, 1m) and 1,000 Guineas (Gr 1, 1m) taking place on the scheduled dates of May 23 and 24, Kavanagh said: "It could. I think if we came back soon after May 4 we could continue with that schedule, but after that there would come a point where a decision would have to be made about whether to reschedule them."

Almond eyeing Victoria Mile return

Japanese sensation Almond Eye (Lord Kanaloa) is back in full training after an abortive trip to Dubai last month, and is being aimed at the Victoria Mile (Gr 1, 1600m) on May 17 for her comeback run. Almond Eye shipped back to Japan late last month and is set to return to trainer Sakae Kunieda's barn at the Miho Training Center this week as she is prepared for the mile contest at Tokyo. Winner of the Japanese fillies' Triple Crown in 2018, Almond Eye has also claimed top-level victories in the Japan Cup (2400m) and Tenno Sho (Autumn) (2000m) and is among the most popular horses in Japan. Last year she had been in the mix to contest the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe (Gr 1, 2400m) before connections changed their plans. She is second favourite for this year's race behind two-time Arc winner Enable (Nathaniel).

STEVE MORAN

An all-local spring? Bring it on

Shocking and Vow And Declare

ANZ

BY STEVE MORAN | @ANZ_NEWS

The largesse of the Australian racing industry is extraordinary.

In the past 18 months alone, we've happily shelled out more than $21 million of our prize-money to northern hemisphere-owned and trained horses.

That's to just nine horses. I haven't bothered with the minutiae of the many others to have picked up place money cheques which would further swell that pot.

True, a good deal of this has gone to Godolphin which is a major employer in this country, but what of the total amount we've leaked off shore since Vintage Crop won 'the' Cup in 1993.

A further seven overseas-trained horses have won the Melbourne Cup since then, while another 24 have run second or third. Add in six Caulfield Cup and two Cox Plate winners and the figure would be astronomical.

Not all, of course, were owned outright in other parts of the world, but you get the picture.

And the drain would have been even greater had we not had the two freakishly good mares in Makybe Diva and Winx holding the fort. And what of the money spent on courting and housing these visitors?

So, I trust you will understand my frustration when racing club and governing body officials are constantly - of late - lamenting the likely absence of overseas horses from this year's spring carnival. And this against the backdrop of generally declining Cups' crowds and turnover.

I'd have thought there were more important issues right now.

I can't wait for a visitor free spring. One, because the total distribution of prize money to locals only is the likely stimulus many participants will need and two, because it will afford the opportunity for the industry to reassess and possibly reset.

Nobody has been able to itemise any economic benefit from having so many visiting horses - especially from England, Ireland and Europe.

It would be drawing a long and tenuous bow to suggest they drive international tourism. All but one of the nine winners of the big money paid out since the 2018 spring was owned by one individual or one organisation.

Overseas visitors have been attracted to the spring carnival long before its "internationalisation". Probably since 1895 when American writer Mark Twain famously said of his visit to the Melbourne Cup in 1895: 'nowhere in the world have I encountered a festival of people that has such a magnificent appeal to the whole nation. The Cup astonishes me.'

I will concede that at least and finally, in the past six months, we've had legitimately high class performers appear in Lys Gracieux and Addeybb, although I'm not sure the latter was so acknowledged by the Brits.

The Racing Post recently ran a feature, published in ANZ Bloodstock News, headlined: "How he (Addeybb) went from soft-ground handicapper to Group 1 hero in Australia."

Those well known battlers Sheikh Ahmed Al Maktoum and William Haggas must be giggling behind our backs and literally laughing all the way to the bank.

Would the recent Group 1 Queen Elizabeth Stakes have lost anything had it been Verry Elleegant, with a multitude of local owners, narrowly beating Japan's Danon Premium?

The presence of runners from Japan makes sense given the wagering revenue generated from that jurisdiction which only covers international racing in which the country is represented.

The Australian Turf Club is believed to have had around a $2 million windfall from the Hong Kong Jockey Club's simulcast of The Championships but the HKJC will take these major Australian meetings, when they see fit and are allowed, regardless of international participation.

"I cannot imagine there'll be any less interest in a Melbourne Cup with no international runners. It's the Melbourne Cup. It's sacred."

While Lys Gracieux and Addeybb indeed added some "class", I would still argue that part of the reset should be to consider whether the number of visitors should be capped and whether the focus should be chiefly on "neighbours" Japan and Hong Kong - linking major races - rather than on Great Britain, Ireland and Europe.

I love British, Irish and European racing. Although perhaps not as much as those who spend millions buying staying horses there - a spend, which incidentally, is not reciprocated on our sprinters.

I don't begrudge any racing officials having a jolly fine time establishing international relationships and soliciting participants.

A handful of Melbourne Cup internationals is probably okay, based on three or four exempt races (but definitely only one for three-year-olds). I have zero interest in internationals contesting our weight-for-age races unless they are among the top three rated horses in their home.

I accept some level of internationalisation may be desirable - provided that means quality horses landing here but it's just spiralled out of control.

That's been starkly reinforced by two northern hemisphere three-year-olds beating the handicapper to win the Melbourne Cup; in contrast to the likes of grand performers like Persian Punch, Vinnie Roe and Red Cadeaux (on his second, third and fourth visits) seeking to defy the handicapper.

I'd be delighted to have a Melbourne Cup runner this year with no international opposition and with no greater expectation than finishing sixth to 12th and picking up the $160,000 for doing so. That would have me reinvesting and that prize-money offering shouldn't change even if the reward for the top three is significantly cut....which it certainly should be in the current circumstances.

I cannot imagine there'll be any less interest in a Melbourne Cup with no international runners. It's the Melbourne Cup. It's sacred.

This year, as international

"seven overseas-trained horses have won the Melbourne Cup since then, while another 24 have run second or third. Add in six Caulfield Cup and two Cox Plate winners and the figure would be astronomical" movement sits right now, it is also unlikely the Cup field will include any recently purchased horses - from overseas - by Australians.

Good heavens they might have to think about buying a tried horse locally or, heaven forbid, spending at the 2021 yearling sales!

The long term redistribution of prize-money, through a much wider range of races and therefore (potentially) participants, ought to be a primary focus which might include maiden or first city win bonuses.

A Melbourne Cup worth $7.7 million last year just seems a nonsense now as we recalibrate our thinking on all matters during these extraordinary times.

Likewise the $5 million presented for the Caulfield Cup and the Cox Plate. These hikes, in recent years, are driven by nothing more than ego.

Everything has been nearly turned on its head from crowd-free and zoned jockeys racing to an Inglis Easter sale online - all of which has been exceptionally well managed.

Racing's state governing bodies deserve plaudits for this but, right now, I'd say they have an unprecedented opportunity to take it a step further by getting together to totally reassess how the sport is conducted at every level - especially as even greater challenges may lay ahead if the economy declines beyond current forecasts and spring carnival racing clashes with delayed AFL and NRL seasons.

That'd be a good idea, I reckon. Who knows what is precisely the right path but there has certainly never been a better time for a wholesale re-think. Better than worrying about how much money we can give away again this year.
